Demands Mount for Special Session on School Crisis

14 COUNTIES OPEN CONCLAVE TODAY TO SEEK SOLUTION

Economy Probers Mean-while Study Way To Make $3,000,000 More Available for Teachers.

Developments were registered on two fronts yesterday in the growing effort to stabilize the Georgia school situation and assure teachers' salaries. They were:

(1) The house economy investigating committee inquired into the possibility of increasing by $3,000,000 annually the allotment of state funds for teachers' salaries.

(2) Added pressure to that already exerted for a special session of the legislature, to find a permanent solution of the problem, came from five quarters.

Expect Other Demands.

The second development, which is expected to be followed by similar demands from organizations and officials throughout the state, sprang from the state-wide conference at Macon Wednesday which formed "The Laymen's Organization for the Permanent Protection of Georgia Schools."

It was announced at Moultrie that school authorities, teachers and parents in 14 counties of the second district would meet this morning to discuss what was termed "the critical situation facing the public schools."

Albany Asks Action.

At Albany the city commission urged the special session "to try to do something about school finances."

The Cadwell Parent-Teacher Association went on record as favoring the extra session "to end the school crisis by any means possible."

Determination was expressed at Quitman by school officials to demand a cure of the school problem and to participate in the Moultrie conference.

Favors Special Session.

Athens dispatches told of an announcement by Senator Wallace Harrell that he favored the special session immediately, in the belief a deficiency appropriation would be made to pay teachers for services already given and possibly to provide for reopening this summer of schools which had been forced to close.

The economy committee, reconvening after an off-day in which members inspected agricultural experimental work at the University of Georgia, dispatched a letter to Attorney General Arnall asking if existing law requires inclusion of equalization and vocational educational funds in calculations of the mandatory allotments for salaries.

The seven-month school law requires that not less than 75 per cent of all funds available for the common schools must be used for teachers' salaries. The remaining one-fourth is allotted for maintenance and other expenses, such as transportation and bus drivers' salaries.

Mutual Aid Pledge Brings to 6 Number of Nations in Each Opposing Camp

By The Associated Press.

The British-French front acquired an important new ally yesterday in Turkey, "cross-roads between east and west."

The World War enemy of the western powers and Britain exchanged pledges to aid each other "in the event of an act of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean area."

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the British house of commons the arrangement would remain effective pending conclusion of a "definitive long-term agreement of reciprocal character."

Six Nations in Each Bloc.

The addition of Turkey increased the membership of the London-Paris bloc to six nations—Britain, France, Poland, Rumania, Greece and Turkey.

The rival Rome-Berlin alliance has a like number of nations lined up in the anti-comintern pact—Germany, Italy, Japan, Spain, Hungary and Manchoukuo.

Britain is negotiating with Soviet Russia for an accord, while Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, although doubtful, are leaning toward the Rome-Berlin front.

Daladier Is Upheld.

French Premier Daladier's national defense government, meanwhile, won a strong parliamentary vote of confidence—375 to 230—in its declared policy of resistance to an effort to dominate Europe by force.

In Warsaw, the Nationalist newspaper, Wiczoj Warszawski, charged that 30,000 Germans had filtered into Danzig, which Germany wants, in "an invasion of armed squads."

This charge and a denunciation of any effort by Germany to resort to a plebiscite in the free city were published while Poles solemnly observed the fourth anniversary of the death of Joseph Pilsudski, Poland's national hero.

The strength of Spanish friendship with Germany and Italy was demonstrated at Barajas, outside Madrid, where Generalissimo Franco decorated and praised Italian and German fliers who helped him win Spain's civil war.

In the far east, Japanese blue-jackets suddenly occupied the Kulsung International Settlement at Amoy and a Japanese spokesman suggested a similar move against Shanghai's great International Settlement "may be necessary."

U.S. Holds Up Passport For Kuhn, 2 Aides

State Department Awaits Inquiry of Trio by New York City.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Applications for passports for Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund, and two associates have been held up by the State Department since early March, it was disclosed today by an authoritative source.

The department, it was said, postponed granting the passports because of an investigation of the affairs of the three men by New York city authorities. The two associates are Fritz Schwiager and Gerhard Wilhelm Kunz.

Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, telegraphed Secretary Hull today asking that issuance of passports be held up until the investigation is completed.

The State Department, it was learned, will comply with LaGuardia's request.

An official said that whenever the department knows of any action, under investigation by municipal or state authorities that might result in indictment, action on the application for a passport is deferred a reasonable time.

A passport, the official said, is not a right of a citizen. The secretary of state has the discretion to grant or refuse one as he sees fit.

KUHN ASKS $5 MILLION IN SUIT AGAINST FILM

NEW YORK, May 12.—(AP)—Fritz Kuhn, president of the German-American Bund, began suit today in federal court, demanding $5,000,000 for alleged libel in the motion picture "Confession of a Nazi Spy." Kuhn sued as an individual and as president of the bund.

The complaint named as defendants Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Milton Krims, John Wexley and Leon G. Turrou, former FBI agent. Kuhn also asked that further distribution of the film be enjoined.

The complaint said "the bund is a patriotic, loyal and American organization, composed of loyal, patriotic American citizens of German birth or parentage, aims to uphold the constitution and laws of the United States, to honor the flag and institutions of the United States and to be a valuable, desirable and respected class of law-abiding citizens of the United States."

In the film, the complaint said, members and Kuhn are portrayed as traitors, "fostering in the United States a world-wide campaign launched by the German government . . . and working for the destruction of the United States and the elimination of the Bill of Rights."

International-Conscious Hen Lays Egg: 'War Is Ahead'

PARKS UNGUARDED AND UNSAFE FOR WOMEN IS CLAIM

Parks Committee of City Council Expresses Its Dissatisfaction at Way Police Give Protection.

The Atlanta police department is not performing its duty in guarding the city's parks to a degree where women and girls are safe, it was stated at a meeting of the parks committee of city council yesterday. At the same time "disappointment" was expressed with Police Chief M. A. Hornsby.

Councilman J. Allen Couch described parks and the need for improved police protection as follows:

"It is unsafe for a woman or a young girl to pass through Maddox park after dark if she doesn't wish to be insulted."

Councilman Cecil W. Hester and Alderman Frank H. Reynolds approved his remarks.

Committee members voted unanimously to direct a letter to Chief Hornsby appealing for better policing of all the parks, "especially Maddox park."

Couch Disappointed.

"I am frankly disappointed in Chief Hornsby. This is not a personal attack. I think he is a good man," Couch said.

Alderman Reynolds: "I think police officers are afraid to do their duty. The parks are left wide open to vandals and bums."

Hester nodded approval, and said he had told Hornsby substantially the same thing.

George I. Simons, general manager of parks, said the loss through operation of vandals at Piedmont park especially is large. "Why every time they break one of those electric light globes there, it means the city has lost five dollars," he added. "We have tried to get protection, but we have not been successful up until now."

Pools Open May 27.

The committee voted to open the municipally owned and operated swimming pools May 27. White pools are at Grant, Piedmont, Maddox, Oakland City and Mozley parks. Washington park, operated for negroes, will open at the same time.

A fund of $100 was voted as a contribution to the recreational course to be held this year at Emory University for the purpose of training experts. The National Recreation Association and local business establishments also are contributing.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam and Councilman C. M. Bolen, other members of the parks committee, were not present.

BILLION FARM BILL PASSED IN SENATE BY HUGE MAJORITY

Attempts To Economize on Outlay Fail; Measure Now Returns to House for Expected Battle.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Thrusting aside all attempts to economize on government outlays for the farmer, the senate passed a record-breaking $1,218,866,572 farm bill today by a top-heavy 61-to-14 vote.

The big annual supply bill now goes back to the house for an expected battle about the $383,647,959 increase made by the senate over the total previously voted by the house.

Fight Predicted.

Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, a leader among house economy advocates, predicted a lively fight against the scores of senate increases.

Economy-minded senators made two futile attempts to trim the total of the measure which carries funds to operate the Department of Agriculture and Farm Credit Administration for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, asked unanimous consent for reconsideration of $388,000,000 added to the bill by the senate for farm benefits, in addition to the $500,000,000 voted by the house.

La Follette Objects.

"I object," shouted Senator La Follette, Progressive, Wisconsin, jumping to his feet.

Senator Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, moved the bulky bill be sent back to committee with instructions to remove $376,540,521 of increases over the budget estimates of President Roosevelt. This move failed, 42 to 28, as 15 Democrats and 13 Republicans supported the economy move.

The final vote found only 11 Republicans and three Democrats against the measure. Voting in favor were 49 Democrats, eight Republicans, two Farmer-Laborites and the only Progressive and Independent senators. Both Senators George and Russell, of Georgia, voted for the bill.

Russell Cites Misunderstanding.

Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, floor manager for the bill, told the senate much of the criticism resulted from a misunderstanding.

The Georgia senator said the Agriculture Department had more than $1,500,000,000 to spend on its far-flung activities during the present fiscal year and would have some $141,000,000 less during the next year.

REID AND ARNALL ARE SPARED RAGES BY THE GOVERNOR

Brunswick Solicitor General Must Face Voters; Moore Rules Carpenter Does Not Have To Run.

By L. A. FARRELL.

There will be no election for chief justice of the state supreme court, attorney general or judges of the superior court on June 6, it was definitely established yesterday.

Governor Rivers, it was learned, has made up his mind to place the names of Solicitor General Glenn Thomas, of the Brunswick circuit, and his three opponents on the ballot, but none of the judges appointed since January 1 to serve out unexpired terms will have to face their opponents until next year.

Ruling by Moore.

The Governor's decision came almost simultaneously with a ruling by Superior Judge Virlyn B. Moore that Judge Robert Carpenter, of the civil court of Fulton county, does not have to run in the June election.

Governor Rivers has made no formal announcement of his decision, but it is expected early next week when it is understood the chief executive will tell the voters of the state that he does not believe the constitution of Georgia is so drawn that it requires judges of the superior court, who preside only over their own circuits, to be elected by statewide balloting. They actually are elected in statewide balloting but are nominated in contests confined only to their respective circuits.

Yeomans' Contentment.

The Governor is known to feel that because judges elected in November elections actually have to run only in their own circuits it would be unfair to those appointed since the November election last year to force them to make a statewide campaign.

In the case of Chief Justice Charles S. Reid and Attorney General Ellis Arnall, both of whom are serving unexpired terms, it is expected that the Governor will stand entirely on the ruling he obtained from the late former Attorney General M. J. Yeomans before Judge Yeomans retired from the law department and in which he held that the appointed chief

ECONOMY PROBES HINT SUSPENSION OF 4 FARM MARKS

Atlanta, Macon Only Two
Not Running at a Loss;
Alto Hospital Annex
Will Be Investigated.

Suspension or sharp curtailment of four state farmers' markets now operated at a loss was seen as a possibility yesterday as the house economy investigating committee probed the market situation.

After hearing testimony by Walter Perkins, director of the State Marketing Bureau, the committee asked preparation of recommendations for discontinuance of those markets which do not show a profit.

Perkins said the only markets in the state which do not show red ink on their ledgers are those at Atlanta and Macon. He added the market at Glennville was nearly self-supporting, but those at Thomasville, Valdosta, Claxton and Douglas had consistently failed to make expenses.

Hospital Probe.
Recalling Director T. F. Abernethy of the State Department of Public Health, who was questioned several weeks ago, the committee inquired into operation of Georgia's tubercular hospital at Alto, in Habersham county.

Chairman Wilmer D. Lanier expressed concern that lack of funds has prevented use of a new hospital addition which virtually would double capacity of the institution. The annex, built at a cost of more than $380,000, has 240 beds.

The hospital this year was allotted $240,000 of the department's total $800,000 appropriation.

Shortage Cited.
Lanier hinted the committee might recommend legislation to require the Health Department to place the hospital as No. 1 on its list for payment and make up any shortage in the Alto appropriation by drawing on other funds. Dr. Abernethy, however, asserted the department would "lose everything we've gained (in health work) in 20 years and also our federal funds."

He said such action would place "extraordinary emphasis on tuberculosis when there are other things of equal importance." He listed preventive work in typhoid, malaria, hookworm and other ailments.

REORGANIZATION SEEN OF RESOURCES GROUP

Reorganization of the Natural Resources Department in compliance with recommendations of the house economy investigating committee will be introduced Monday by Governor E. D. Rivers and the natural resources advisory committee.

The Governor announced the meeting yesterday, after conferring with Cason J. Callaway, LaGrange textile manufacturer, who has been serving as advisory committee chairman.

The Governor's plans call for nomination by the committee of a secretary and acting commissioner of natural resources to succeed R. F. Burch, of Eastman, and an acting director of the wild life division, succeeding Joe D. Mitchell.

3-Building Fire Laid To Youths' Smoking

Boys smoking in a vacant store were believed responsible for a three-alarm fire which damaged a church and two store buildings on Capitol avenue with a loss estimated at $5,000 late yesterday afternoon.

The blaze started in the vacant store, at 1041 Capitol avenue, spread to the South Side Baptist church at 1043 and to a chain grocery at 1039. The side of the church was scorched and interior of the stores was burned. Assistant Fire Chief W. P. Barker, who estimated the loss, said he learned of several boys with cigarettes in the store. Flames were brought under control in 20 minutes, and the fire was extinguished in an hour and a half.

S. C. PARALYSIS SCARE MAY CLOSE SCHOOLS

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 12.—(UP)—Charleston county trustees, acting on a motion of the county board of education, tonight recommended that all schools in this area be closed as a precaution against the spread of infantile paralysis.

Three new cases of poliomyelitis were reported late today, making a total of 68 cases in the county this year. Four have died of the disease.

Monroe Celebrates Opening Of Stone Mountain Highway

State Officials Gather With Hundreds of Walton County
ians in Hailing Completion of Ribbon Linking Atlanta and Athens.

By LUKE GREENE,
Constitution Staff Writer.
MONROE, Ga., May 12.—This thriving little city in the heart of Walton county came out of the country and onto the main highway today—completing a dream that began 19 years ago when far-sighted community leaders envisioned the day that a continuous ribbon of pavement would wind through Monroe from Atlanta to Athens.

Hundreds of citizens of Walton county and neighboring cities gathered to celebrate the completion of the Stone Mountain Memorial highway.

For Monroe it was the biggest day in many a moon. Flags were draped around its buildings and lamp posts. The trim Georgia Military Academy band marched up and down its streets playing military marches. The residents opened up their hearts to the visitors.

Motorcades from Atlanta and Athens officially dedicated the new highway. Governor Rivers and other state officials participated in an elaborate speaking program in the Monroe school auditorium, and later the throng assembled on the school grounds for a barbecue.

There was plenty of handshaking and some "politicizing." Some of the state's better known politicians were there. Ex-Governor Talmadge, who got a rousing welcome when he was introduced, did his bit of mixing and mingling. Ernest Camp, editor of the Wal-

The four suits were transferred on the grounds that out-of-state residents were involved.

FEAR OF DISCHARGE SLOWS WPA PROBE

Fired Tennessee Employee To Be Quizzed.
WASHINGTON, May 12.—(AP)—Members of the house committee investigating the WPA expressed fear today that the dismissal of a Tennessee state employee who gave information to committee investigators would hamper the inquiry.

Eugene R. Kuhne, fish technician of the Tennessee conservation department, who was quoted by investigators as saying WPA funds had been used in that state to improve property owned by political prominent persons, was discharged yesterday. The committee immediately asked him to appear for questioning.

HERBERT PORTER'S RITES TOMORROW

Mr. Porter had purposely concealed the seriousness of his condition even from members of his own family and that just before undergoing an operation which he knew might prove fatal he telephoned his niece to give her instructions about the purchase of a saddle horse.

The only intimation that he knew the illness might be his last was given to his personal physician, Dr. Earl Quillian. In a recent letter to him, he said:

"It may be 'au revoir' and it may be 'good-bye.' If it is 'good-bye' just tell the fellows that Herb says 'So long and thanks for a grand time while it lasted.'"

Governor Rivers, Mayor Hartsfield and other friends joined yesterday in glowing tributes to the memory of Mr. Porter, declaring that his death was a distinct loss to the city and to the state.

Rivers' Tribute.
"In the passing of Herbert Porter, Georgia has lost one of its most outstanding citizens and the newspaper profession one of its ablest publishers."

"It has been my honor to have known Herbert Porter for many years and in his death I feel a deep personal loss as well as the loss to our state."

"During the years that he served as publisher of the Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American, Mr. Porter always proved himself an honest and capable leader, always standing for the cause of justice and always willing to present his own service and that of his great newspaper to the aid of every worth-while cause."

"As much as any other man of our time, Mr. Porter gave of his time and talents to help make Georgia a better place in which to live. His counsel and his vision were always available to me and in his death I feel that I have lost a devoted counsellor. His unexpected and tragic passing leaves a place in the hearts of Georgians which cannot soon be filled."

ONLY THREE WEEKS OF SCHOOL—THEN GRADUATION TIME

"Great Citizen."
Mayor, Hartsfield's statement follows:

"Atlanta has lost a public-spirited citizen and a civic leader. Herbert Porter was unselfish in his regard for the welfare of the entire community. He was not only a great newspaper executive but a great citizen of Atlanta and of Georgia. His death is not only a great personal shock but a distinct loss to our city and state."

In a message to the Georgian organization, James R. Gray, vice president and editor of the Journal, said:

"I am shocked and pained to learn of Herbert Porter's death. He was a newspaperman of high and gallant spirit, an executive of rare ability and a citizen of the truest mould. Please accept my sympathy in the passing of the distinguished publisher of the Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American, and convey my heartfelt condolence to his bereaved family."

"Deeply Shocked."
John A. Brice, vice president and general manager of the Journal, said:

"I was deeply shocked to learn the sad news of Herbert Porter's death. He was an able executive, an outstanding publisher and a leader in all of the civic and cultural life of Atlanta. His death will be a great loss to our community. My deepest sympathy to the bereaved family and the members of the Georgian-American staff."

Scores of other tributes were received by the Georgian throughout the day.

Directors of the Civitan Club, in a special meeting, voted to initiate a movement to erect a memorial to Mr. Porter at Cane Creek, Georgia, for which he had been an active worker for many years. Additional details will be announced later.

$250,000 SUIT LOOMS AGAINST BARRYMORE

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—(AP)—David Fisher, John Barrymore's business manager, declared in a formal statement today he would sue the actor for $250,000, charging defamation of character.

Basis of the action, Fisher explained, would be Barrymore's "ridiculous" suit against Fisher and Mrs. Barrymore for an accounting of $300,000.

RICHMOND UPHELD IN ADOPTION CASE

Juvenile Court Affirmed as Child Placing Agency
by Tribunal.

Passing upon a contest between two families over adoption of a three-year-old girl, the state Court of Appeals yesterday upheld the authority of the juvenile court of Richmond county as a child-placing agency.

The high court affirmed the juvenile court's order of adoption granted to Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Jones, of Richmond county, for permanent custody of Patricia Belton, daughter of Mrs. Clara Belton.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Criswell sought to adopt the child upon written consent of the mother and contended the juvenile court had no authority to award custody to the Jones couple.

The high court disagreed with the Criswells' contention that a child-placing act of 1922 repealed the child-placing authority of the Juvenile Court Act of 1915.

The court further said Patricia's mother was present when her daughter was surrendered to the juvenile court and apparently did not object, thereby losing parental control and her right to consent to adoption.

The juvenile court of Richmond county is a child-placing agency, licensed by the legislature, with broad supervisory powers, to assure the welfare of a neglected child or one found to be under such improper or insufficient guardianship or control as to endanger its morals, health, or general welfare," the appellate court ruled.

JAPAN THREATENS AMERICAN SECTOR

Troops Occupy Amoy Foreign Area, May Enter
Shanghai Settlement.

SHANGHAI, Saturday, May 12. (UP)—Japan threatened today to occupy the Anglo-American area of the International Settlement and the French concession if foreign authorities fail to meet good faith promises to oust Chinese Nationalist terrorists who have been attacking Chinese friends of the Japanese.

To emphasize their threat the Japanese occupied Kailang, the foreign area at Amoy, South China seaport midway between Shanghai and Hongkong, after the assassination there of Hung Li-hsun, chairman of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and a friend of Japan.

Chinese Rounded Up.
Hung was shot yesterday, allegedly by a member of Nationalist Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's "Blue Shirt" terrorist organization, and died last night. Japanese immediately entered the foreign area and rounded up scores of Chinese suspects.

A few hours earlier Anglo-American and French authorities had yielded to Japanese demands that they enforce drastic measures to prevent the foreign areas from being used as a base of operations by any of Chiang's organizations.

Other developments in the Chinese-Japanese war, included: In Tokyo, Japanese Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie called on Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita and formally protested against the Japanese air raid on Chungking last week in which the Chinese Nationalist capital was wrecked and the British consulate damaged.

Leans Toward Germany.
It appeared that last week's Anglo-Japanese conversations, designed to reach an agreement on China questions preliminary to a general Anglo-Japanese understanding, had been dropped for the time and that Japan again was leaning toward Germany. The newspaper Asahi insisted that Japan had offered her good offices to Berlin as a mediator in the Polish-German dispute.

The U. S. S. Bunker was due at Amoy for a routine visit today and it was assumed the warship would stand by until tension there has relaxed.

Commenting on the Amoy assassination a Japanese spokesman said:

"It may be necessary to take similar action in Shanghai in event any grave crisis arises."

He said circumstances would determine whether Japanese forces would occupy the settlement defense sectors held by British troops and United States marines and the French concession.

"We would prefer, however, not to discuss such an unpleasant possibility," he added.

Poor Cotton Is Expensive

The popular opinion that cotton, because of the present large surplus, is likely to be a drug on the market from now on, is creating a lackadaisical, "what's the use" feeling among certain types of growers. Why worry about such unimportant things as yield per acre? Why bother about growing better cotton? Who cares about wilt, rust, poor stands, root-knot, boll-rot, leaf spots and what have you, with 12,000,000 bales of cotton left over from past years bursting the nation's warehouses?

Perhaps there's a bit of understandable logic in one phase of this argument. Perhaps growing more cotton would add to the present surplus unless more cotton is consumed in the immediate future than has been consumed in the recent past. This would, in all probability, add to the cotton farmer's difficulties. But when has a neglected field of cotton solved a grower's problem? Where is the farmer who has ever found success in raising poor cotton or poor farm products of any kind?

The Georgia Experiment Station has just reported that losses to cotton alone will come to over five per cent of the value of the entire crop this year unless planters are more prompt in fighting the usual plant diseases and pests. If the same "don't care" attitude continues the boll weevil will take an unusually heavy toll. The growers who go in for big acreage and small yield will be the sufferers.

The successful farmer in Georgia, however, and there are thousands of them despite the popular impression to the contrary, is the man who gets high yield per acre. Not only high yield per acre in cotton, but in everything he undertakes to grow. The high yield cotton grower is the only successful cotton grower because he raises his cotton on half the acreage utilized by his slovenly neighbor across the road. He puts the land saved into other productive uses. Not only does he grow better cotton cheaper on less ground, but he grows better corn, better tobacco, better beans and raises finer stock, on less ground.

Georgia needs its cotton. It should not give up another bale. There is no need of giving up another bale. Diversification and cotton go hand in hand. Diversify, but diversify by growing more cotton, as the successful farmer does, on less ground. But there is more to growing more and better cotton on less ground than sowing the seed in the spring and picking the cotton in the fall. The outmoded, slovenly method of leaving the crop more or less to nature should be abandoned.

The state of Georgia is particularly well equipped to aid farmers in improving quality and increasing yield, not only as to cotton, but in all agricultural products cultivated in the state. But these facilities of the department of agriculture, of the experiment stations, of the extension services, are utterly useless unless the farmers voluntarily avail themselves of them.

A Way of Life

To ordinary mortals, beset by the cares of each succeeding day, the zest for life so happily possessed by men such as "Billy" Phelps, beloved Yale mentor and moulder of men, may sometimes seem strange. One has but to read Phelps' monumental autobiography, however, to discover a way of life that brings a man through the years with rich memories and uncounted friends.

His story may be summed up in few words: I loved all men of good will. I have known the tender beauty of a happy marriage. I brought to thousands a keen appreciation of the world's literature. I learned gentleness and found how to relax, from the cat. I have known devotion and loyalty that only a good dog can give. I have lived well, but wisely.

Beyond this is the central thread of his life: I have brought happiness to others, and in this happiness have I found my own happiness and contentment. Not in so many words does he explain this, but in many words, words of rare beauty, words without ego but with deep conviction.

Reading through life with this vibrant personality is a journey that even Dale Carnegie, who tells the world "how to make friends and influence people," might take with profit. His catholic taste is well tempered by discretion, and even in the most unpleasant moments of his life he finds satisfactions which seemingly more than balance the scale.

True, he has lived removed from the material world in the halls of academic pursuits; yet he has never been cloistered from this every-day sphere in which men move. He has steered character into many men, has brought to millions the deep pleasure to be found in the great books of civilization. And now from his pen has come perhaps his greatest contribution for those who will spend a few, short hours in reading "Autobiography with Letters"—a way of life.

The Coal Situation

The decision of John L. Lewis, head of the CIO United Mine Workers, to negotiate agreements with individual coal operators and thus reopen some mines, promises to relieve some of the tension that now keeps hundreds of thousands of men out of work.

While in Atlanta there is not the acute shortage that threatens industry and transportation in other large cities, particularly in the industrial east, a continuation of the work stoppage will be severely felt. The effects have already thrown many workers in other industries out of employment at a time when the nation can ill afford it. Conversely, a resumption of mining will result in an accelerated pace for all industry.

So that Lewis is to be praised for yielding in demands for an all-embracing contract. At the same time, it will be regretted that it is necessary to suspend the machinery under which one contract would be signed by the UMW on one hand and the coal operators on the other. Under collective bargaining principles, this industry-wide negotiation represents an ideal method of determining labor-capital relationships. It brings to the conference table groups of nearly equal interests, removes the petty interferences of local jealousies and adjusts competition between rival firms.

However that may be, it is imperative that the flow of coal to industry, to the railroads and to the transportation systems of large cities be resumed at the earliest possible moment. There can be no quarrel with the need for a settlement.

The merits of the divergent contentions of the disputants will quite naturally find champions, each convinced of the rightness of the stands that resulted in the impasse. In this instance, however, the national interest transcends the immediate issues and any action permitting a resumption of work will meet with widespread public approval.

The Passing Auto Show

During the 40 years automobiles have been manufactured in the United States, some 1,000 different companies have been engaged in the building of cars. Any man who can think back to the beginning of the century can remember at least three or four makes, more or less prominent then, which disappeared, he knows not where or how, with the passing of time.

Who is likely to forget the "Apperson Jack-rabbit" bounding across the countryside? Or the "White Steamer," propelled as a locomotive was propelled, by steam, breathing hard even at the thought of a grade which today would mean nothing in the life of an automobile. Then there was the "Acme"—a perfect name for anything that was good—not to mention the "Lozier," the "Winton" and many another excellent job of the time when automobiles were better than the roads over which they were expected to travel.

There were hundreds of names, however, whose renown scarcely extended beyond the city limits of the town in which they were designed and manufactured. Many of them resemble the pet name given the frat house bus by college freshmen. The "Auto-Go," but wouldn't and the "Bugmobile," the "Darling," the "Imp," the "Kidder," the "Redbug," the "Gasbuggy" and—here's a good one—the "Zip!" all bring back recollections better forgotten, to some people.

Growing out of the old-fashioned breakdown far-removed from the necessary assistance, in all probability, came the "Anger" and perhaps the "Crouch," both expressive terms of what usually followed. But the more dignified "Mighty Michigan" and the "Stalio-Super" indicate stability while, for the long journey, there were the "Farmobile" and the "Club Car."

Some of today's great names survived from the beginning. The others joined in as the procession passed. It has been a remarkable spectacle, this automobile parade.

The Duke picked Good Friday to obliterate Albania, and we imagine the axis boys have something especially choice cooked up for Mother's Day.

They say the Fuehrer is trying out a 1 per cent beer, brewed especially for him. We don't know whether he's tapering off or being weaned.

Already we have forgotten which Italian general took Albania, but his memoirs of the campaign should be along soon in 800 pages.

Customs officers kept imported germs so long in quarantine, they died, thus shielding us from the competition of these foreign, low-paid bacteria.

ASKING A PERTINENT QUESTION.

(From the Charleston News & Courier.)
Men who are to build the Santee-Cooper dams and have direction of the "project's" construction should have been chosen by reason of practical experience and success in works of that kind. Their selection should not have been confined to persons in South Carolina. Private corporations entrusted with other people's money search the whole country for experts to perform tasks economically. Every possible evidence or suspicion that administrators were chosen on account of political service or influence should have been avoided. Had that been done, the objects of the construction would have been in part abandoned. Had that been done, what good the project? If a great project is to be carried out at the cost of $40,000,000 to American taxpayers without rewards to excellent and honorable gentlemen who have demonstrated acuteness and facility in political activities, why in all conscience, should the public monies be used for the construction of a "project"?

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

CAN FIGHT FOR YEAR WASHINGTON, May 12.—By tremendous effort, and stern self-denial, Germany is now thought to have prepared herself for at least a year of offensive warfare. A much shorter period is named by some authorities. A far longer one is mentioned by others, who count on prompt German conquest of such vital raw material sources as the Rumanian oil fields. But a year seems to be the best guess.

It is based on expert calculation of German raw material production, estimates of German reserves of raw materials and ready-made war supplies, and estimates of German wartime consumption of these goods. The figures are, of course, open to question by other experts. But, controversial as it is, the calculation is well worth recording. The meat of it is contained in the following tables:

Germany at Peace
Production	Consumption	Reserves
Tons	Tons	Tons
3,200,000	5,000,000	2,000,000
18,000,000	26,000,000	<hr/>
945,000	1,600,000	1,000,000

945,000	1,600,000	1,600,000
Germany at War
		Reserves After
		a Year
3,200,000	5,000,000	200,000
18,000,000	18,000,000	—
945,000	1,600,000	345,000

BELTS TIGHTENED. The wartime consumption figures are the real heart of the tables. It may seem incredible that fat use and motor fuel use are expected to remain the same in wartime, while a cut in steel use is actually predicted. But, with respect to steel, the German general staff has plans for the strictest rationing, turning every bit of domestic steel production to wartime account. At the same time, reserves of such steel products as artillery, ammunition and the like are thought to be sufficient to supply most of the army's needs for a year. And the great steel-belt fortifications along the Rhine are now complete.

The German people are already on a wartime fat ration, or a cut would be expected here also. As for motor fuel, the general staff is believed to have a program confining its use almost exclusively to airplanes and fighting vehicles. Reliance on trucks for transport causes the vast increases in motor fuel use experienced by other nations in wartime. Except where speed is strategically important, when the Hitler autobahn will be turned to account, most of the German war transport is expected to be done by rail. Even at the front, quickly laid narrow-gauge tracks will carry German troops and supplies, as they did in the last war.

Leaving on one side the consumption estimates, there are other important questions. Steel production will be crippled, for example, if the Swedish ores cease to be available to Germany. In a prolonged war, shortages of other foods besides fats may develop. They are not expected to appear in the first year because the Germans will avoid the mistake of the last war, when all the able-bodied men were taken from the fields. But, as a war goes on, able-bodied men grow scarcer and scarcer.

RUMANIAN OIL WELLS. Then motor fuel reserves, even with extraordinarily low consumption, will be almost exhausted after a year of fighting. To keep going, the Germans will be absolutely compelled to have the Rumanian oil wells. And, if the Rumanian wells are set on fire this time, as they were in 1916, it will take the Germans nine months or so to bring them into production again. On the other hand, although the Rumanians have already sworn to fire the wells if necessary, it should be recalled that English troops had to do the work last time.

Finally, there is copper. German copper production is only 30,000 tons a year, and cannot be increased beyond 60,000. Peacetime consumption is 200,000 tons and, after the stored-up supplies of ammunition are used, wartime consumption will be astronomical. Reserves of raw copper are known to be immense, and are being augmented, but copper is another vital problem to the Germans. In fact, the three prosaic materials, copper, fat, and crude oil, are likely to decide the next war, one way or another.

Who Gets The Flowers?

Friend who works in one of Atlanta's largest office buildings was commenting, the other day, on the habit of Atlanta men of bringing fresh flowers with them when they come to work each morning. She wondered whether all the executives and clerks she saw in the elevators carrying bunches of flowers liked to keep them, in a vase, on their own desks or whether they were little presents to feminine secretaries, stenographers, file clerks, etc.

My opinion was that the vast majority were for the men's own desks. It is a characteristic of Atlanta offices, a bunch of gorgeous blooms in an attractive bowl or vase. Probably each man, or his wife, cultivates a flower garden and likes to display his own products. And, after all, it is a charming and a very desirable habit.

There can be no question that attractive surroundings at office or store conduce to better and more effective work. The days when a man's place of business was a dusty, strictly utilitarian and disagreeable place, are over. A highly successful executive once told me, in explaining why he had spent much money on artistic and luxurious furnishings for his office, that he actually spent more time there than in any other surroundings. His hours at home, awake, were fewer than those at his office and he certainly did not sleep as long as he worked.

"And why," he asked, "shouldn't I make the place where the great portion of my life is spent, as attractive as possible?"

Why not, indeed.

A City Of Gardens.

Atlanta is, after all, a city of gardens, home gardens. The outstanding impression voiced by most strangers, visiting here in the summertime at least, is admiration for the lawns and flowerbeds surrounding our homes.

And it is well that the evidence and the effect of those gardens be carried into the stores and work-shops and offices. It makes 'em better places and keeps a man from forgetting that, in the scheme of creation, a single rose is more important than a file room full of dusty records. If not, why did God expend so much of His love on the beauty of that rose?

Craziest Letters.

In almost every mail there comes a letter or two on some fantastic or abstruse subject. They deal with affairs—social, financial, commercial, cultural or what have you. They propound the most ludicrous theories and advocate reforms of the most startling impossibility—and undesirability. They are, of course, the outpourings of cranks.

Most of them come from distant places. From the north, the mid-west or the far west. Los Angeles and New York—possibly Washington, too—are the commonest postmarks on this type of mail.

They are all written for publication and, of course, find their fate in the waste basket. But wonder is aroused about the writers. If a man in Los Angeles writes a letter of three or four paragraphs that is scarcely intelligent in its content and address it simply to the editor of a newspaper in Atlanta, Ga., the presumption is he is writing similar letters to newspapers all over the country. Which must be a full-time occupation. There must be heads of crackpots in this country of ours, crackpots with a tremendous amount of spare time on their hands.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Wednesday, May 13, 1914:

"All the Oriental fantasia of Arabian Nights with all the spectacular tricks of modern ingenuity were in the mammoth Shriners parade last night to present to the 150,000 Atlanta and visitors the most magnificent pageant that has ever bewildered a multitude in Dixie."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Monday, May 13, 1869:

"A common saying 'Happy is the corpse the rain falls on.' Thus it is said that if rain falls at the time of the funeral it is a sign that the dead has gone to heaven."

Coastline of Sweden.

The coastline of Sweden, which provides so many sunny beaches for visitors, would if stretched out to its fullest length extend for 4,740 miles, or the whole distance across the Atlantic from the Swedish coast to the shores of the United States.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Another NEW YORK, May 12.—President Roosevelt, needing the press again, which is fair enough, says that in some communities loudly proclaimed untruths or greatly exaggerated half-truths may be overtaken only through the radio.

I go along with the President in that, but I must say that he himself is a half-truth there, because he knows that no single paper or chain of papers ever had half the influence in this country, that Charles E. Coughlin possessed when he was on top and that vicious liars who deal in untruth and innuendo enjoy a degree of license on the air which is unthinkable in the papers and equal only in the halls of congress, where every member has a license to lie and slander.

The President failed to say, as he should have said because he knows it to be fact and the other half of his proposition, that untruths may be more loudly proclaimed and half-truths more effectively exaggerated on the air than on paper and that the combined press of the United States, if it were possible to obtain unity on any issue in a free press, could not overtake such a liar as Adolf Hitler, who obtains his best effects by radio and uses the press only as an auxiliary. He knows, also, that a Coughlin, a Huey Long or a president is libel-proof by contract with an individual or corporation operating a million-dollar newspaper property, and that radio orators, once they attain to certain degree of prominence and influence, may acquire a privilege to vilify and incite commotion by raising the issue of free speech if they are curbed.

Tricky Statement.

Mr. Roosevelt also said that the people have a right to expect their government to keep them supplied with sober facts in every possible way. That is a tricky statement which makes no provision for the important element of truth in the presentation of matter which a partisan government may choose to regard as sober facts. He knows, and every journalist knows, and the Communist and Nazi-Fascist journalist knows best of all, because they use that method exclusively, that it is possible to class-angle sober facts. And I hope he doesn't expect anyone to believe that his government ever would take the air to present sober facts which would bring discredit on his presidency or any of its undertakings or its important members.

Politicians, like lawyers, never give the other side of a question, and a government composed of politicians who in many cases are also lawyers and in some cases are Communists or "yellow-travelers" could not be relied on to present sober facts. Who then would overtake loudly proclaimed untruths or greatly exaggerated half-truths? Who could command sufficient time on the radio to overtake part propaganda matter discussed daily under government auspices and what individual or group would have the prestige to convince the people that the government had told untruths or half-truths?

Another Angle.

On the subject of the veracity of the press it should be mentioned that there are many embittered ex-journalists now spotted around in the New Deal in Washington who stopped at their own business and hate the profession at which they failed. So the New Deal, it may be seen, is not wholly against the American press but respects and gives influential employment to persuasive wanklers who can be relied upon to praise their meek and harass the papers which couldn't do them.

One hears occasionally that editors and newspaper writers are ink-stained prostitutes. Passing that question, is it fair to ask whether Mr. Roosevelt or any of his bureau chiefs would publish, on the air or in print, any material prepared by any of the New Deal journalists which presented "sober facts" in an uncommemorative way and how soon that free soul would be canned for cause?

Pews With Windows.

One of the things which astonish visitors to the Dome church, oldest church in Tallinn, Estonia, is that the family pews are inclosed with windows which apparently were opened or shut according to whether the sermon was interesting or dull.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

THE MIND OF THE PEOPLE Looking about over the state, it seems apparent there has been a slight shift in opinion. Governor E. D. Rivers' stock has risen a bit from the low point reached at the adjournment of the legislature. Public opinion has digested the results and a new thinking has begun.

Here and there the sentiment for a sales tax may be detected in fields where once they put salt to keep that particular tax plant from growing. In the beginning it was a cloud on the political horizon no bigger than a man's hand. Now it has grown to astonishing proportions. Here and there a gentleman who beat his breast and tore his hair in the last legislative session at the very idea of a sales tax, is beginning to say he is for it if it will do the job. One representative, in order to find some basis for a change, is conducting a straw vote in his county. Others may follow suit.

The opposition is beginning to rally as the cloud grows but it is a question whether or not they have waited too late. The little period in which there was a facing of realities has done much to change thinking.

In all the welter of recriminations, shouts, charges and counter charges, the fact the legislature had appropriated more than $20,000,000 and provided taxes to bring in less than $13,000,000 in revenue was lost to sight. It emerged after the sound and the fury had died away.

No one knows for sure what is the mind of the people. But there is less swearing at the Governor. He has not regained the political strength he had. He cannot, being an outgoing officer with no more favors to grant and no more patronage to dispense. But the fighting talk before the county commissioners helped him. When it was done his arch enemy, who had listened, said, "He almost convinced me." It was a sleeves-up speech. This is not as important as the fact that some of the turbulence has died out of the scene. There may be an opportunity for a real session of the legislature. If the county officers follow the path of the commissioners we may expect I imagine, a legislative session by August 1.

THE PRESSURE OF SCHOOLS

The schools will be but a month away when the legislature does open. That pressure will be on the session. It will require some definite action.

There seems to be a sentiment in the legislature to create a sales tax without exemptions. All the funds derived from it would be allocated to schools, thus taking care of the University System and all the rest of the school system of the state.

It will be opposed, as will any form of sales tax. The forces which helped defeat it before will be active. They may succeed again but the whispers in the wind seem to indicate that no session will be called until enough votes are pledged for the tax.

Then will come the test as to whether or not the opposition can change enough votes after the "boys" arrive to break up the pledges. The cry for no more taxes will not be weak.

Against this will be the fact that the schools will open within a month; that hundreds of teachers are waiting for the past school year; that the attorney general has ruled they may be paid back salaries if the legislature will enact the proper legislation.

It will be a very important session. It may be, although it is difficult to imagine it, a short one.

"A BREATHING SPELL"

What Georgia needs is a breathing spell. It is too much expected.

special session will do more than create revenue to open the schools and to provide for the hospital for the mentally sick at Milledgeville. Business devoutly hopes there will be no more taxes. But business earnestly hopes there may be a breathing spell, a truce for a few years. Business would not care if the session were a long one, provided it reorganized government; made it possible for business and industry to establish themselves in Georgia without fear of a new upheaval in taxation.

The economy committee has done at least one valuable work. It has placed a finger on the fact that reorganization is needed if real economy is to be in effect in Georgia's government. The legislature has it within its power to make economy a necessary part of its administration.

The legislature, not the Governor, makes Georgia's laws; puts in measures which will make mandatory economical government.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise: I am afraid your education is being neglected. They aren't teaching you the facts of life. Education is supposed to prepare you for the business of living, but if that package of cheap face-fixer you received with the morning mail is one of the results, you are being cheated. They aren't teaching you how not to be a sucker.

In tearing down a kid's illusions and teaching her to be skeptical, there are two dangers to be avoided. The first is that she will say: "If so many people need watching, doubtless everybody is crooked except me." That will make her a self-righteous little snob. The other danger is that she will say: "If everybody else is crooked, I might as well go with the crowd and get what I can out of it."

But there is no such danger if you are reasonably smart, for you have only to open your eyes to see endless evidence that most people are honest and decent.

If all dogs were savage, it wouldn't be necessary to warn people against a few. If there were dangerous crossings at all points on the highway, you wouldn't need any warning. And if all people were untruthful and dishonest, you would have learned to beware of them by the time you learned to fear a hot stove. The fact that most people are honest makes you unwary and trustful, so it's the scarcity of rogues that makes it necessary to warn you to be on your guard.

Detecting the little frauds isn't difficult, for they usually give themselves away.

If a cheap magazine is evidently printed for morons, you can be reasonably sure that the miraculous cures and beautifiers advertised

F.D.R. WILL NAME LEAHY GOVERNOR OF PUERTO RICO

Naval Chief Will Succeed
Winship at Island Post
Which Is To Become the
'Gibraltar of Caribbean.'

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(UP) President Roosevelt today revealed that he will appoint Admiral William D. Leahy, 64-year-old retiring chief of naval operations, to the governorship of Puerto Rico which is to be converted into a "Gibraltar of the Caribbean" to safeguard the vital Panama Canal.

The chief executive told a surprised press conference that the name of the quiet, wiry admiral, one of the nation's shrewdest military strategists, will be sent to the senate soon for confirmation as successor to Governor Blanton Winship, 70-year-old former army officer, who is retiring because of advanced age.

The shift is expected to occur around August 1 as Leahy wishes to continue in active service until congress adjourns to assist with the administration's multi-billion-dollar defense program. As the navy's top-ranking officer, he has the option of continuing in or retiring from active service despite the fact he passed the statutory retirement age of 64 last Saturday.

Will Co-ordinate Defenses.
It is believed that Leahy's chief duties will be to co-ordinate the island defenses as well as to attempt to straighten out tangled economic and unemployment conditions.

The war department recently established Puerto Rico as a separate military department—similar to army corps areas in continental United States—and is planning to expand its air base there. Congress also has approved establishment of a large navy air base there. Both moves are in line with the policy of strengthening defenses in the south Atlantic area—safeguarding the Panama Canal, which would be in easy reach of patrol planes from Puerto Rican bases.

WINSHIP WILL RETURN TO HOME IN GEORGIA

SAN JUAN, P. R., May 12.—(AP) Governor Blanton Winship today said Puerto Rico was "damned lucky" to get Admiral William D. Leahy, whom President Roosevelt revealed in Washington he soon would nominate as governor of this island.

At his press conference an hour after the news reached here and while newsmen on the street shouted, "Winship Kicked Out!" the governor said: "I think you're all damned lucky to get Admiral Leahy. He is one of the world's outstanding navy men and a fine administrator."

Governor Winship said he had talked over matters with President Roosevelt on his recent trip to Washington and had told the chief executive he "wanted to go" when the time was appropriate. He said he returned here to finish up his work and write a final report.

Asked whether he would remain in San Juan until Admiral Leahy arrives—probably about the end of summer—Governor Winship replied he would do as the President wishes him to do. He said his only present plans are to return to his Macon, Ga., home and "my old friends."

The governor revealed no bitterness over the President's action in announcing his replacement and said he would "always be ready" to serve Puerto Rico.

GOOD MORNING By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

PAUL AT EPHESUS.
Sunday's lesson, Acts 18:18 to 20:38 and Ephesians 2, covers Paul's third missionary journey, a period of approximately four years, and centered chiefly at Ephesus. Completing his long and successful ministry in Corinth, he visited churches in Galatia and Phrygia, setting up his headquarters at Ephesus, the chief city of Asia. It was a stronghold of paganism, the temple of Diana, one of the seven wonders of the world, standing at the head of the harbor. Ephesus was one of the free cities of the Roman empire, the people living in luxury and dissipation. Apollos had preached at Ephesus and there were Christian believers, there to welcome Paul.

For three months Paul preached in the synagogues, speaking with great boldness and reasoning concerning the kingdom of God. Some believed, while others resisted Paul openly, convincing him that he would be handicapped if he remained in the synagogues. Accordingly, he went to the School of Tyrannus, a conspicuous institution in Ephesus, where he preached daily and held consultation with those who were interested in his teaching. This continued for two years.

Many visitors to Ephesus came under the influence of Paul's ministry—"all they which dwell in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks." Opposition from the devotees of Diana resulted in Paul leaving Ephesus for a season, during which he raised money among the churches for the poor of Jerusalem. On his way to Jerusalem, Paul stopped at Miletus, about 30 miles from Ephesus, and the elders came to give him a report of the progress of Christianity in the nearby metropolis.

Paul's address at Miletus belongs among the great utterances of Christian history. He recited what he had sought to do in his Ephesian ministry—the suffering he had endured—the advance which had been made—the prospects for the future. He closed his great address with an admonition to the elders to carry on in the same spirit of sacrifice and courage.

New License Law Explained

Chauffeur's License Now Necessary for Truck Drivers; Only Operator-Owners Will Be Exempt

All persons who drive trucks must secure public chauffeur's licenses as provided under the new safety act passed by the recent general assembly, it was announced yesterday by Commissioner Phil Brewster.

The only truck driver exempt from the necessity of securing a chauffeur's license is the owner of the truck who might be making an occasional trip to deliver his own products, but any driver who is operating his own truck to deliver someone else's goods, or who is employed and does not own the truck himself, must have a public chauffeur's license.

Georgia Is Granted Social Security Aid

The Social Security Board in Washington, announced yesterday these public assistance grants for Georgia: $210,952 for needy aged; $12,152 for the blind and $68,605 for dependent children, for May and June.

men who are used as chauffeurs, taxi drivers, trackless trolley drivers, and all persons who drive vehicles used to transport persons or property for hire must have a public chauffeur's license.

These licenses may be secured at 859 Confederate avenue, and any person who does not now hold a public chauffeur's license must take the required examination in order to obtain one. Those who have a public chauffeur's license may apply for renewal without necessity of an examination.

Any person who by mistake has already secured a 1939 (since May 1) operator's license will receive

DEPARTMENT STORE SALES SHOW GAIN

22 Per Cent Increase Noted for Week.

Department store sales in the sixth federal reserve district for the week ending last Saturday increased 22 per cent over the previous week, but were down one per cent from the same week last year, the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank has reported.

Atlanta sales for the same period showed no change compared to the preceding week, and were three per cent below the same week of 1938.

For the four weeks ending the same date, Atlanta sales were one per cent below the corresponding period last year, while district sales declined three per cent.

credit of the amount paid for the operator's license on making application for the chauffeur's license, provided such application is made prior to June 30, 1939.

Commissioner Brewster emphasized again the fact that the license issued prior to May 1 of this year expires on June 30, and must be renewed to that date. He said that application blanks for renewal can be obtained at practically every service station, sheriff's office, and in one central location in every community in the state.

"These applications must be filled out and mailed direct to Box 1741, Atlanta, along with a cashier's check or money order for the usual $1 fee. The only other location in the state where applications are being accepted for renewal is at the state capital, on the ground floor, near the motor vehicle department.

AIR LINE WILL SEEK PERMITS FROM CAA

Four New Routes Proposed; Flying School Planned at Milledgeville.

Definite steps will be taken Monday in Washington to launch activities of the Southern Air Lines, Inc., which plans operating four new airlines to connect Atlanta directly with Cincinnati, Pensacola, Savannah and Memphis.

Stratton Hard, president, will seek permits from the Civil Aeronautics Authority which, if granted, will complete legal formalities. In addition to the lines, it is planned to establish a $100,000 flying school at Milledgeville this autumn.

The projected lines are:

1. Between Atlanta and Cincinnati, with stops at Knoxville, Tenn., and Lexington, Ky., two round trips daily.
2. Between Atlanta and Memphis, with a regular stop at Birmingham, and flag stops at Anniston, Ala., and Tupelo, Miss., with two round trips daily.
3. Between Atlanta and Pensacola, with stops at Columbus and Dothan, one round-trip daily.
4. Between Atlanta and Savannah, with two round trips daily.

Gestapo Frees Rothschild, Imprisoned Since April, '38

Noted Banker Leaves Vienna Immediately by Plane for Switzerland.

VIENNA, May 12.—(AP)—Louis Rothschild, a member of the family of noted bankers, was released by the Gestapo (secret police) today.

He had been a prisoner since April, 1938.

He left immediately by airplane for Zurich, Switzerland. Rothschild for 13 months was confined to two rooms on the top floor of Vienna's Metropole hotel, where the Gestapo held numerous political prisoners.

His rooms adjoined those of Kurt Schuschnigg, former Austrian chancellor, who presumably still is being held in the large grey stone building on the banks of the Danube.

It was understood that Rothschild, once one of the most influential financial leaders in the Danube valley, would have been released sooner had there not been complicated negotiations involving his property holdings in Austria.

ROTHSCHILD TO SUE NAZI GOVERNMENT

ZURICH, Switzerland, May 12. Friends of Baron Louis Rothschild, released in Vienna today by the Gestapo after 13 months' imprisonment, said tonight he planned a suit against the Nazi government to regain his confiscated fortune.

The Baron, looking aged and weak as a result of his detention, arrived in Zurich yesterday by a regular air liner. After a short rest he left by train for Paris.

His hair, once a dark brown with a fringe of grey at the temples, had turned white. Those who came in contact with Rothschild said he appeared depressed.

Associates did not indicate the terms of his release or how he hoped to bring suit against the German government.

The 56-year-old Baron was met by his brother, Baron Eugene Rothschild, and a group of the family's staff of attorneys.

In Paris, he was expected to stay with his brother and the latter's American-born wife, the former Katherine Wolff, a native of Philadelphia.

PACIFIC FLEET DROPS ANCHOR IN HOME PORT

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 12.—(AP) Uncle Sam's mighty Pacific fleet returned to home bases here and in San Diego today after four months of maneuvers in the Atlantic.

The first of 20 battleships and cruisers, led by Admiral Claude V. Ruggier, 62, was brought to a Camden, N. J., hospital from her home at Hampton, N. J., where Police Chief Nicholas Paccitti said she attempted suicide because she was "disgusted with the Philadelphia case."

Her stepdaughter is Mrs. Rose Carina, a fugitive since she was charged with murder as the "lure" for prospective victims of the ring.

The chemical tests were demanded by Mrs. Millie Giacobbe, 50-year-old proprietor of a little dry goods store, who is held in the poisoning of her husband.

She has steadfastly insisted Paul Petrillo, stoop-shouldered tailor also held on a murder charge, was the poisoner and that she was innocent.

She said Petrillo wanted to dispose of her husband so he could marry her, but that she had been in such pain recently she believed poison had been administered to her, too.

At Washington a spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Investigation said yesterday that he had received from Philadelphia authorities for aid in cleaning up the case, but Director J. Edgar Hoover would give any such request "immediate consideration."

TALMADGE GIBED IN FLORIDA HOUSE

Discussion Delayed on Invitation to Governor.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 12. (AP)—A Senate resolution inviting Governor Talmadge to address the Georgia legislature was called "that Talmadge thing" in the house today.

Representative Warren, of Duval, sought to bring up the senate resolution out of regular order, as well as go a step farther and have our battleships built in England or get our armor-plate from Belgium.

"We're trying to maintain a higher standard of living in this country, but we can't do it without paying for it," he said. "If we want to compete on the level of the people on the plains of Argentina we'll have to cut out our shorter hours and higher wages."

President Roosevelt disclosed at his press conference that he had written Secretary of the Navy Swanson authorizing him to accept an Argentine bid to supply the navy with 48,000 pounds of canned corned beef at 15 cents a pound, including the duty of 6 cents a pound. This would make the net price to the government 9 cents a pound, compared to bids from domestic producers of 23 cents a pound.

Furthermore, the President said the Argentine beef was far superior. And, he added, the navy tries to feed its 110,000 men with the best of food.

FBI OFFERS TO HELP IN DEATH RING PLOT

Philadelphia Police Promise To Have Case Ready for Trial Unaided.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—(AP) Immediate consideration of any request for help was promised by the federal government today as Philadelphia investigators worked at high speed to wipe out a band blamed in scores of deaths in four states for insurance.

Detectives here, indicating no desire to see FBI agents step in, promised to have the amazing case ready for trial May 22, as scheduled, unaided.

Meanwhile, one widow charged with murder demanded chemical tests to show she had been poisoned by the ring, and the stepmother of a woman sought on a murder warrant drank poison.

Critically ill, Mrs. Angelina Ruggiero, 62, was brought to a Camden, N. J., hospital from her home at Hampton, N. J., where Police Chief Nicholas Paccitti said she attempted suicide because she was "disgusted with the Philadelphia case."

Her stepdaughter is Mrs. Rose Carina, a fugitive since she was charged with murder as the "lure" for prospective victims of the ring.

Shirley Ross, in Atlanta on Tour, Hopes for Better Break in Films

Singer Assails Importing of Foreign Stars by Hollywood.

By LEE ROGERS.

Vivacious Shirley Ross, of the movies and radio, but who prides herself most on being a Californian, is in our city to complete an eight-week personal appearance tour before returning to Hollywood with high hopes for a better break in pictures.

The blue-eyed blond singer, who is appearing at the Capitol, thinks the day of giving meaty roles to foreign stars is over and she wants to be on the spot with a good boarding house grab when the star parts are made available to good American kids.

Attacks Importing of Stars. Shirley is a frank little miss. She said she thought it was high time the movie powers looked over the home lot talent.

"The foreign market is closed to all American pictures—excepting in England and France and a few other countries. Why should they bring in these 'glamor' girls from middle Europe when there are so many talented American girls and boys hanging out in Hollywood dying for a chance to show their ability?" Shirley asked.

The "Thanks for the Memory" girl was the song that made her reputation—has lived in Hollywood 19 years but, despite the make-believe world around her, she has preserved her naturalness.

Happily Married.

"I usually go home after work and live a perfectly normal life. I see Bette Davis, Edgar Bergen and one or two other close friends at home, but for the others, I leave them on the studio lot."

Shirley is happily married to Ken Dolan, radio man, whom she is joining next week in New York to see the World's Fair before going back west. He's up east now and she misses him.

"That's why I like the movies better than stage business," she said. "I can live a normal life, and that means going home to him at night."

Mother Accompanies Shirley.

Her mother, Mrs. C. B. Gaunt, is traveling with Shirley, whose real name—when—is Beatrice Maude Gaunt, or was before she married.

"When I went into pictures I had to have a new name—quick," Shirley laughed.

ARMY MANEUVERS START ON MONDAY

Fort Benning To Be Scene of Fourth Corps Area Trials.

Divided into "blue" and "red" forces, 231 officers and 7,190 men from army posts in Georgia, the Carolinas and Alabama will engage in fourth corps area maneuvers at Fort Benning for six days, beginning Monday.

Commanding the "Blue" army of 131 officers and 4,280 men will be Brigadier General Robert O. Van Horn. Opposing him will be Colonel Charles H. White, in command of 100 officers and 2,910 men.

The "Blues" will move south to invade the territory of the "Reds," who will advance north to take defense positions. The two forces will meet along the Uptau river on the Fort Benning reservation. After that, the maneuver will depend on decisions of the commanders.

Army officials said one purpose was to permit Major General Stanley D. Embick, new fourth corps area commander, to observe the troops in action under field conditions.

S. C. SENATE PASSES HUGE FUNDS BILL

Measure Returned to House for Concurrence.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 12.—(UP)—The South Carolina senate today passed the general appropriation bill totaling $14,759,663 after attaching several amendments—including one calling for a new revenue program to raise $4,500,000—and returned it to the house for concurrence.

The upper legislative chamber added $45,225 for cotton research, $10,000 for the Ben Tillman Memorial and $25,000 to aid crippled children.

A motion by Senator William H. Nicholson, Greenwood, to reduce all appropriations six per cent was defeated, 20 to 17.

HUIET IS ENJOINED ON LABOR ELECTION

Union Charges Effort To Thwart Bargaining by Forcing Ballot.

Ben Huiet, Georgia commissioner of labor, and five others yesterday were enjoined temporarily from holding an election at the Standard Hat Company, 210 Pryor street.

Vivian Bettis, Onie Nash and Alta Lash, members of the United Hatters Cap and Millinery Workers' International Union, were complainants, charging chiefly that J. E. B. Stewart and the others were attempting to thwart collective bargaining by forcing an election.

Judge Walter C. Hendrix, of Fulton county superior court, signed a temporary restraining order, and set a hearing for 9:30 a. m. May 19.

Other defendants, in addition to Huiet and Stewart, are Mae Jenkins, Albert Rocquemore, Jeff Holt and Margaret Martin.

Stewart last night said he had been designated by Commissioner Huiet to investigate the labor complications under section No. 9, subsection 2, of the law creating the Department of Labor and that on his recommendation Huiet had appointed a representative and the National Labor Relations Board had appointed one to conduct the election.

"We have been settling controversial matters by this method (elections) since 1776 and I am still in favor of majority rule," Stewart said. "It was my understanding that all parties concerned were agreeable to the plan above outlined."

JOBLESS BENEFIT LAW RULING GIVEN

Firms Owning Stock in Federal Home Loan Bank Subject to Act.

Georgia corporations owning stock in the Federal Home Loan Bank system are not "instrumentalities of the federal government" by virtue of such ownership, and therefore are subject to the state unemployment compensation law, Appeal Referee Marion Williamson ruled yesterday.

Officials said the decision would bring hundreds of employees of insurance companies, building and loan associations and other organizations under the state law.

The ruling was rendered in an appeal by a former salesman of an insurance company, a Georgia corporation, which contended it was not an "employer" under the law because it owned stock in the Federal Home Loan Bank system. The salesman had been disallowed benefits because of "lack of qualifying earnings."

County Manager Urged to Grand Jury

Committee of March-April Body Calls for Economy, Asks Survey of Personnel, Salaries.

Drastic revision of Fulton county administration in which "a $50,000 a year full-time county manager would be an economy" was urged yesterday by the May-June grand jury by a special committee from the March-April jury, which made a seven-weeks' investigation of county affairs.

W. A. Baughn, foreman of the March-April grand jury, was accompanied by W. M. Marr, W. M. Little and W. C. Smith.

The committee stressed the importance of a further study of county problems by the present grand jury, championing the creation of a central auditing and purchasing department to eliminate "slippage and inadequate" accounting methods and purchases.

Salary Survey Asked.

Among the other major recommendations made by the committee were:

1. A personnel and salary schedule survey to cull unnecessary employees from the pay rolls and to bring county salaries in line with those paid in private business.
2. General overhauling of the machinery for handling juvenile delinquents with the juvenile court as the hub of the revamped division.
3. Establishment of the county manager as the real directing head of the county, backed by a "board of directors" county commissioners) of prominent businessmen who probably could be induced to serve in the part-time capacity for $25 a month each instead of the $300 a month now paid county commissioners.

Levy for Relief.

4. Levy of a 24-mill special relief tax instead of the three mills, sponsored by the Fulton county commission and the Fulton county board of public welfare in order that the relief collections can be begun operative at the earliest possible moment.

5. Approval of a proposal to create a layman's committee to study county needs for handling juveniles, especially the conduct of the Fulton County Industrial school for white boys, Hapeville, where the administrative staff was dismissed and several of its members indicted on several charges.

The present grand jury took the recommendations under advisement, but gave no indication as to what it will do about them. George A. Campbell is foreman of the body.

Members of the Fulton county commission are scheduled to meet Monday to discuss the recommendations of the March-April grand jury, but Ed L. Almond, chairman, said yesterday that the "more vital" proposals probably will be held in abeyance until a full membership of the commission can be present. Commissioner Gior Haley is out of the city on a short vacation in Florida, recuperating from a recent illness.

COMMUNISTS USE 'SWING' TO CONVERT YOUNG PEOPLE

NEW YORK, May 12.—(P)—Streamlined speeches and swing overtook the left wing at the national convention of the Young Communists League today.

After conventional start with "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the "Internationale," the delegates swung into the jitterbug groove with such items from the new Communist musical "Swing America," as "Picket Line Priscilla" and "You Can't Live on Love."

Urging the delegates to "burn the midnight oil to study Marxism and Leninism," a speaker denounced the "idle wealthy," branding Tommy Manville, as-bests heir, as the "national playboy," the former Barbara Hutton, five-and-ten heiress, as "the butterfly of the profits system," and Debutante Brenda Frazier as the best publicized girl in society.

"Mother" Bloor, 76-year-old Communist leader, urged the members to convert their parents to Communism.

"In New Jersey," she said, "we are trying that with complete success. Many of the girls and boys have invited me to take dinner with their parents, and when I have done so the parents see a nice grandmotherly person like me and recently I have converted five of those fathers."

Plane Crash Toll Mounts As Europe Girds for War

Germany Leads in Pilot Deaths With Average of 3 Every 2 Days; Speed Up of Production, Training and Fatalistic Spirit Held Responsible.

(By the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Figures concerning crashes of military planes have become, in the last year, one of the greatest military secrets of war-shadowed European countries, owing largely to the fact that their numbers have mounted steadily with the terrific increase in aerial preparation.

It is known, in spite of this secrecy, that the rush to develop new ships and train new pilots has resulted, in many cases, in poor construction and insufficiently trained men, and that these are the principal contributing factors to an appalling situation.

More Air Disasters.

Because this country is in no sense under pressure at the present time, but can expand its air force in a more leisurely fashion, there will be none of the casualty rate that Europe is experiencing. The best information available now, from a source compiling reliable aeronautical statistics, puts the toll of deaths or serious injuries to pilots in Germany at three every two days. England and France have a rate of approximately one every three days and Italy is on a par with them. The number in Russia, like everything else military there, is not even guessed at.

Fatalistic Spirit in Reich.

Aside from the speeding up of production and training as reasons for Germany's toll, there is a psychological factor responsible. Any German pilot going out on a mission is given orders to do his job and do it satisfactorily or not come back alive. The result is a fatalistic spirit of giving all to the Fatherland that drives them beyond ordinary limits. It is matched at present only by the oriental fatalism of the Japanese and Chinese.

Mussolini has tried to instill the same type of devotion into his air force, but the more volatile Italian temperament does not react well to such austere grimness.

Fall to Provide Comfort.

Another strain put upon the German pilots is due to the lack of effort on the part of the government to provide for their comfort. In this country, the army is spending large sums to study pilot fatigue, physical and mental reaction to high altitude flight, and the necessary rest periods to insure the best possible condition at all times. Germany, set upon a Spartan program and threatened with a serious shortage of raw materials in the event of prolonged hostilities, conserves every scrap of usable metal or fabric. The cockpit of a German ship has only the minimum of flight instruments, whereas our pilots are given every known aid to navigation and control. The German doesn't even have a comfortable seat.

These things do not mean Germany has been short-sighted in her program of physical development of pilot personnel. On the contrary, her entire and immense organization for instructing potential fliers, which begins at the 10-year-old level, is calculated to bring these young men along at the peak of condition. But the very fact that she is years ahead of the rest of the world in establishing a reservoir of available man-power is making her careless with the men after they are trained.

WOMAN LOSES SUIT AGAINST COCA-COLA

Court of Appeals Upholds Judgment Favoring Bottling Firm.

By The Associated Press.

The state court of appeals yesterday upheld a judgment favoring Atlanta Coca-Cola Bottling Company in a $100,000 damage suit charging invasion of privacy.

In the Fulton county superior court suit Mrs. J. M. McDaniel alleged the company spied upon her by installing in her hospital room a receiving set over which a person in an adjoining room heard all her conversations for three weeks.

The company admitted installing the listening device, but said they were justified in doing so because they became "convinced the plaintiff was attempting to manufacture a fake damage suit" against the defendant.

The company contended Mrs. McDaniel threatened to sue them on a claim of having swallowed glass from a bottle of Coca-Cola, and further alleged that a nurse saw her holding a thermometer against a hot water bottle.

Mrs. McDaniel claimed her character was injured, asserting she was humiliated and embarrassed by having someone listening to her conversations, some of which were delicate and private of nature.

The high court agreed Mrs. McDaniel set forth a cause of action but also agreed the lower court judgment in the damage case was correct.

SPECIAL SESSION PRESSURE GROWS

has construed the law as exempting the equalization fund, which is allotted from one cent of the gasoline tax on a basis of school needs and funds earmarked for vocational education.

Dispute over the salary allotment provision engaged the general assembly at its regular session, and opponents of the administration contended the law had not been strictly adhered to.

Could Have Paid Them.

State Auditor Zach Arnold, in testimony before the committee in February, asserted Georgia's 21,000 teachers could have been paid in full had salary payments been placed first on the list of obligations for education funds. He said this would have contemplated use of equalization funds for salaries. The equalization fund last year totaled $3,246,087.25, while state funds used in matching federal allotments for vocational education are $4. The total appropriation for schools this fiscal year is $9,637,000. Fiscal officers estimated the state would owe its teachers $5,200,000 in back salaries at the end of the year June 30.

The third jurist is Judge Chester A. Byars, of the Griffin circuit, who was named only last week to serve out the unexpired term of the late Judge W. E. H. Seary Jr. At the time Judge Byars was sworn into office, Governor Rivers indicated his views on the forthcoming election by commissioning Judge Byars to a term extending to January 1, 1941.

In ruling on the Carpenter judgeship yesterday, Superior Judge Moore acted on a mandamus filed in behalf of Joe Hill Smith, one of the group of opponents who announced against Judge Carpenter.

Judge Moore held that the law proscribes that judges of the civil court shall be elected at the same time superior court judges are elected and that such judges cannot be elected in the June election. In deciding the mandamus, Judge Moore forbade Ordinary T. H. Jeffries from placing the names of Judge Carpenter and his opponents on the ballot. The ruling sustained an opinion of County Attorney Hughes Spalding issued last week. W. K. Meadow, an associate in the Spalding firm and a former assistant attorney general, represented Judge Jeffries at yesterday's hearing.

Is Appeal Decision.

Smith announced at the conclusion of the proceedings that he would appeal Judge Moore's decision to the supreme court.

"I cannot say there is not time enough for the high court to pass on the matter before the June election but I am anxious to obtain a final decision, nevertheless," Smith said.

Some lawyers merely thought that with the election in controversy having been held, the supreme court would hold the entire matter moot.

Uncle Remus Creator To Be Honored at Annual Event in West End.

With colorful pageantry, the 31st annual Festival of Flowers, under auspices of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association will be held this afternoon at the Wren's Nest, in West End.

Paying tribute to Joel Chandler Harris, famed creator of Uncle Remus and other characters which have delighted generations of children, the festival is expected to attract several hundred persons.

The events will begin at 5 o'clock when Johnny Hunsinger, bugler, sounds clear notes on his shiny instrument—to signal the approach of Beverly Griffith Dobbs, festival queen last year, and her maid of honor, Caroline Orr.

Miss Dobbs will then place the queen's crown on the head of Dorothy Mapp Field, who will reign this year over Snap Bean farm.

Maids and knights, canopy bearers, flower girls and ring bearers will add to the color of the program. Several hundred school children will participate in the program.

47 OF 48 RESCUED IN BOAT COLLISION

One Dies as Two Schooners Sink in Sea.

YARMOUTH, N. S., May 12.—(Canadian Press).—Forty-seven fishermen, all but one man of the crews of two New England schooners which collided and sank 100 miles at sea early Wednesday, were safe in port tonight after rowing open doors toward land for two days and a night. The 48th was dead.

Most of the fishermen were picked up about 20 miles off the Nova Scotia coast and brought to Yarmouth.

Frank Nickerson, 62, of Argyle Sound, N. S., died. His body was brought ashore in one of the dories.

NO BREACH OF PROMISE.

JUDGES RULED OFF BALLOT BY RIVERS

Justice and anyone appointed to serve out his term as attorney general in case of resignation could not be elected except at the same time a governor is chosen.

Appointed Three Judges.

Georgia's solicitors general are elected under a law entirely different from those governing the selection of judges and Governor Rivers is known to have determined that Solicitor General Thomas was appointed January 1 to serve out the unexpired term of W. B. Gibbs, of Jesup, who resigned on that date to take his seat in congress, to which he was elected last year. Gibbs' term would have expired January 1, 1941.

Three superior court judges have been named by the Governor since January 1. The first of these was Judge Walter C. Hendrix, of the Fulton superior court, concerning whose post there has been no conflict as he was named to a newly created office.

The second jurist is Judge Anton L. (Jack) Etheridge of the Fulton superior court, named to serve out the term of the late Judge E. D. Thomas. Judge Etheridge is opposed by Judge T. O. Hancock of the civil court of Fulton county and several others and the Governor's decision not to place any judgeship aspirants on the ballot eliminates the possibility of this race.

Byars Recently Named.

The third jurist is Judge Chester A. Byars, of the Griffin circuit, who was named only last week to serve out the unexpired

CITY HOUSING FUND APPROVED BY F.D.R.

Atlanta Must Match $200,000 of $300,000 Blanket Project.

Works Progress Administration yesterday announced that presidential approval had been given a $300,000 blanket project to prepare and improve housing sites for the Atlanta Housing Authority. The authority will match the federal authorization with $200,000 of its own.

Housing authority and WPA officials said that funds will be used for grading, draining and landscaping on property owned by the authority; for the construction and extension of streets, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, drains, water-mains, street lighting, parks, playgrounds and walkways.

The money cannot be used for work on the buildings or extension of service connections.

While blanket approval has been given the project, work on the grounds of each housing project must be submitted for approval to state WPA engineers and the authority before allotments are made.

BILLION FARM BILL PASSED BY SENATE

referred was not all include in the Agriculture Department appropriation bill last year; part of the money came from unused balances of previous appropriations and from other sources.

Assails Farm Foes.

Referring to the present bill, Russell said:

"This does not constitute any greater drain on the treasury than did appropriations for the current year."

He added that most opponents would not spend "one dime to save agricultural interests of this country from wreck and ruin."

Senator King, Democrat, Utah, sharply criticized the series of government deficits and had an editorial read which charged the big farmers "with the 'log rolling' and 'screwing each other's back'."

Borah, Norris Del. Bill.

Two senate veterans, Borah, Republican, Idaho, and Norris, Independent, Nebraska, defended the large agricultural appropriations. Borah reminded the senate that it had approved more than $2,000,000 for military purposes "without five minutes debate."

Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, the Republican leader, pointed out that many of the funds in the bill were not exclusively for benefit of the farmer. He mentioned the more than $200,000 for federal highway aid, the weather bureau, and other services under the Agriculture Department.

100 Items Added.

Most of the funds voted by the senate—nearly $900,000—would be used to finance various administration farm programs intended to aid the farmer.

The senate did not reduce a single item approved by the house but inserted or increased more than 100 different items.

Senate Added 225 Million.

Both chambers approved a $500,000 fund to be used as benefit payments to farmers co-operating under the crop control act.

The senate approved $225,000 additional for payments to these farmers and this item is expected to cause controversy because the house rejected a similar request for $250,000,000.

The senate also provided $113,000,000 for government programs to dispose of crop surpluses in addition to the $90,000,000 that will be available from customs receipts for this purpose. This also is expected to cause a dispute because term of the late Judge W. E. H. Seary Jr. At the time Judge Byars was sworn into office, Governor Rivers indicated his views on the forthcoming election by commissioning Judge Byars to a term extending to January 1, 1941.

In ruling on the Carpenter judgeship yesterday, Superior Judge Moore acted on a mandamus filed in behalf of Joe Hill Smith, one of the group of opponents who announced against Judge Carpenter.

Judge Moore held that the law proscribes that judges of the civil court shall be elected at the same time superior court judges are elected and that such judges cannot be elected in the June election. In deciding the mandamus, Judge Moore forbade Ordinary T. H. Jeffries from placing the names of Judge Carpenter and his opponents on the ballot. ## Specialized Education Flayed

Dr. Read Cites Need for Broad Learning in Talk at Georgia Tech Honor Day Exercises.

Criticizing highly specialized education, Dr. Frank R. Read, president of the Georgia State Woman's College, at Valdosta, yesterday declared that "Our future men must be broadly educated in both the arts and the sciences. They must master the past, if they are to master the future. As St. Paul said, 'We are debtors both to the Greeks and the barbarians.'"

Speaking at Georgia Tech's Honor Day exercises, held during the morning in the auditorium—gymnasium, Read recommended more college years than the traditional four. "Six or seven years is little enough time to transform a high school boy into a master of science," he said.

Prize Winners Listed.

President M. L. Brittain presided at the exercises. Registrar H. H. Caldwell read the names of honor-roll students.

Winners of prizes included: Bruce Masterton, Pensacola, and William McKnight Farde, Atlanta, the Phi Eta Sigma freshman scholarship cups; Jack Fulton Cook, Atlanta, Skull and Key award; Craig Carlton Davis, Atlanta, and William Len Shipman, Americus, the Pi Tau Sigma awards; Robert Chase Cheek, Savannah, the Kappa Eta Kappa award; Award of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, student branch, to James Hughlett LaRoche, Cocoa, Fla.; American Institute of Chemical Engineers award, and Alpha Chi Sigma award both to Walter Carl George Saeman, Norlina, N. C. Interfraternity scholarship cup was presented to Sigma Nu fraternity.

Other Awards Made.

Cotton Manufacturers Association of Georgia medal was presented to James Alford Stapleton, Decatur; the James E. Oglethorpe Chapter D. A. C. aeronautical scholarship to Ernest Lee Joiner, Hialeah, Fla.; National Association of Cotton Manufacturers medal to William Green Lee, Macon; American Institute of Architects medal to Allen Clark Hudson, Atlanta; the Briarcliff Society cup and the senior engineering cup to Franklin Tillou Waltermire, Peoria, Ill., and the senior scholarship cup to Alfred George Rossow, North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Scholarship gold "T's" were presented by Dr. Brittain to the following members of the junior class: W. F. Bennett, H. W. Bronson Jr., J. Drew, C. D. Flanigan III, F. G. Gallely, L. B. Gay, R. M. Griffin Jr., R. S. Haggart Jr., I. Hornstein, M. Klein, E. D. Kneisel, J. H. LaRoche, J. W. Lemon, R. B. Levin, F. G. Lopez, J. L. Nunes, W. C. G. Saeman, H. S. Saffir, E. L. Scanling, J. B. Stubbins.

from corn-producing states, explained corn was grown in nearly every state but the corn acreage limits and major benefits under the present act were limited to heavy producing areas in order to save administrative costs.

Gillette explained that if a surplus production of corn resulted in limiting marketings after a farmer referendum, that these restrictions would apply only in the commercial areas.

Russell Hits Proposal.

Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, in charge of the bill, said the Johnson proposal would upset the division of the parity funds among major crops.

Russell said present estimates were that cotton growers would get $90,000,000; wheat, $64,000,000, and corn, $65,000,000. If payments were not restricted to the commercial corn area, Russell said, corn would get $100,000,000, with resulting reductions to $40,000,000 for wheat growers and $73,000,000 for cotton.

The Johnson proposal was defeated on a ruling that it was an attempt to write legislation into an appropriation bill.

LINDY CONTINUES TOUR 'ON HIS OWN'

Reverted to Civilian Status on April 29.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(P)—Army officials disclosed today that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh had continued his nation-wide survey of aircraft research centers beyond his tour of active army duty.

Lindbergh served the normal active duty period of two weeks and reverted to civilian status April 29, they said. These officials said they did not know whether he would continue his survey beyond today.

Lindbergh, who was called to duty especially for the survey, conferred during the day with Major General H. H. Arnold, army air corps chief. He flew here from Charlotte, N. C., after a swing through the south.

GEORGIANS INDORSE WAGE ACT CHANGE

State Industries Affected by Proposed Amendments to Labor Measure.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Characterizing the amendments to the fair labor standards act, as reported to the house by its labor committee yesterday, as a "considerable improvement" over existing wage-hour provisions, Representative Robert Ramspeck and Paul Brown, of Georgia, today said they would exempt persons employed in the cotton ginning industry and in grading, packing or preparing fresh fruits and vegetables.

The amendments would also exempt those engaged in compressing and storing cotton, they said.

Interpretative Rulings.

Representative Brown declared he was especially pleased with the provision giving the administrator of the wage-hour division of the Department of Labor power to make interpretative rulings where by any employer, following such rulings, would be protected from the penalties of the law until the courts decide the ruling is wrong.

Explaining the amendments, especially as they affect Georgia industry and agriculture, Representative Ramspeck, second ranking member of the house committee on labor, said:

"They provide a maximum of 60 hours per week without requiring overtime payment for employees engaged in processing agricultural and horticultural products. This includes dairy products, compressing or storing cotton, making syrup, canning and other processing of fruits and vegetables, livestock, eggs, honey and other such products."

"They make some provision for the felling of trees, logging, or operations incidental to the felling of trees or logging, performed prior to, and including, delivery of the logs to a mill for sawing, making pulp, or other processing."

In such cases, time over 60 hours per week must be compensated for at one and one-half times the regular pay rates. In addition to these provisions, all such processors of agricultural or horticultural products, as indicated above, have unlimited hours for the period of 14 weeks during any calendar year to allow for seasonal demands.

Other Exemptions.

"Amendments also exempt from the act persons employed in ginning cotton, persons employed as switchboard operators in public telephone exchanges having 500 or less stations; persons employed in grading, packing or preparing fresh fruits and vegetables, in their raw or natural state, if such operations take place immediately off the farm."

The amendments relax requirements as to home work done in rural areas, which vitally affect the breadbasket workers in north Georgia, for whom Representative Malcolm C. Tarver, of Dalton, has been waging a vigorous fight.

"The new amendments strike from the present law the exemption as to work done in the area of production," as defined by the administrator. The 60-hour week provision takes the place of this exemption, which has proven to be quite troublesome in administration."

Bible Professor Dies

DR. CHARLES H. CURRENS.

DIES IN 71ST YEAR

Was Professor of Bible at William Jennings Bryan Memorial University.

Dr. Charles H. Currens, 70, professor of Bible at the William Jennings Bryan Memorial University at Dayton, Tenn., and a resident of Atlanta for nearly 20 years, died here yesterday at a private hospital. He was stricken with a heart attack Tuesday morning.

Well known as an evangelist and a writer on religious subjects, Dr. Currens was a retired Presbyterian minister and in recent years had divided his time between Dayton and Atlanta, where he taught at the Bible Tabernacle.

A native of Plymouth, Ill., he received his education at Carthage, Ill., and Beloit, Wis., and graduated from the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago. After his ordination he held pastorates at the Eleventh Presbyterian church at Chicago and at the First Presbyterian church of Maywood, Ill.

Following his retirement from the pulpit in 1903 he was for many years an independent evangelist, traveling to many parts of the country. He was the author of scores of Sunday school leaflets which were distributed from Dayton.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Homer G. Allan, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Herman Jones Jr., of Atlanta, and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill by Dr. Harris H. Gregg and the Rev. P. C. Jones. Burial will be in West View cemetery, under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LARGESSE, Ga., May 12.—Home economics for boys is advocated by Miss Mac Coffee, University of Georgia student, who is doing apprentice teaching at LaGrange High school.

Declaring that good manners and good grooming are as much a part of such a course as are cooking and sewing, Miss Coffee cited the fact that "homemaking" is now viewed as a joint enterprise, and deserves the attention of male as well as female.

Miss Coffee and Miss Jerry Rivers, seniors at the university, are combining practice teaching and observation in the local home economics cottage with their work at Athens.

Waistlines Must Be Tiny To Conform to Styles

By Ida Jean Kain.

Styles being what they were about 40 years ago, a girl has to have a neat and tidy waistline—but with none of that pinching, squeezing and shortness of breath that ladies used to put up with. Probably the explanation of that continual rushing around with the smelling salts in those days was the inability of a lady to draw a full breath in her corsets.

Streamlining today is an inside job, done under one's own power. And a lot healthier it is, too! So, the first thing to do is to find out whether your waistline conforms to the styles, and the next is to exercise so that it will.

For that fashionable spare-rib look, it's not only the span around the waist, but the distance from the lowest rib to the crest of the hipbone that counts. If you can just span this distance with the thumb and middle finger, you're one out of a hundred—and you probably have a slim, fully extended midsection.

Figure experts agree that you should not be able to pick up more than three-quarters of an inch of fat between thumb and forefinger at either side of the waist. And a third practical test is the difference between the bust and the waist measurements. If your waist is not less than eight inches less than the bust, and your weight within 10 per cent of normal, the chances are that you are beautifully slim.

Those three tests are not too easily passed, but, as I have always told you, it is easier to slim the waist than any other measurement—if you will only do a few of the right exercises.

Here is an exercise that is both good and hard—but you want a slim waist, don't you? Sit in a straight-backed chair, facing the chairback, with knees anchored firmly at either side, and hold a long wand back of the shoulders, with the ends tucked in the crook of the elbows. When you are set, twist at the waist, first in one direction then in the other. If that doesn't take off the waistline inches, nothing will!

Standing up, hold the wand high overhead, width of the shoulders apart, and stretch. Then with the feet parallel, and holding hips still, twist at the waist to one side and bend down and touch the wand to the floor on the outside of the foot. Stretch again, and bend to other side. Do the exercise slowly, holding hips still and pulling up with the tummy muscles.

In both exercises, the movement is more or less concentrated at the waist. With hips and shoulders held still, the twisting movement of the trunk muscles is much more vigorous and effective. Remember to apply this same rule in your regular set of waistline slimmers.

Do Your Dreams Reveal Hidden Desires?

How baffling the dream that troubles Ann's sleep. She has an urge to hurry along the street that lies before her, but finds herself paralyzed, unable to move.

What does it mean? Ann perhaps will dismiss her dream with a laugh. But dreams are important messages from the unconscious mind, say psychologists. They reveal hidden emotions, desires.

Ann has quarreled with her fiancé, tells herself she cares nothing about him. But her dream indicates she secretly longs to make up with him and pride alone holds her back.

The meanings of your own dreams become clear when you understand dream symbols. Perhaps you dream you have been abandoned—set adrift in a small boat or left behind in a dark and fearful cellar. Such a dream hints you long for popularity, but fear it will never be attained. Rout out such paralyzing fears, is the message in your dream.

Or perhaps you dream of your childhood home, find yourself going back to it with joy. You may long too much for irresponsible days, need to face life as it is.

Foolish dreams, frightening dreams—all have meanings which you need to read to get a better understanding of your personality. Do you dream you are spattered with mud? Falling downstairs? That you can't find your shoes as you start on a journey?

In our 40-page booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS, a well-known psychologist explains these and other typical dreams, gives meanings of dream symbols. Shows how to get clues to your real self—understanding your problems.

Woman's Quiz

Q. What can be done for unpleasant odor and excessive sweating of the feet?

A. If possible, wear the open sandal type shoe or oxford with perforations all through the leather. Bathe the feet in a weak solution of water and formaldehyde and dust with boracic acid powder. Sprinkle the powder in the bottom of the shoes and rub the feet well with it before putting on hosiery. If possible, the shoes and hose should be changed at noon and in early evening, permitting shoes to air in the sun as much as possible. Hyperhidrosis (excessive sweating) occurs in certain diseases and a physician should be consulted if this treatment does not correct the trouble.

Q. Are there any sources where one may obtain house plans free or for a small fee?

A. A list of sources for obtaining house plans may be obtained by sending a stamped, addressed envelope to The Washington Service Bureau, 1013 13th St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, also your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor of The Constitution, Washington Service Bureau, 1013 13th St., Washington, D. ## Lady With House Writes Weekly Diary

By Elizabeth Boykin.

Sunday—Went to the country for dinner today with friends who not only said I could help myself to rocks for my garden path but helped me load them into the car. I came home with two clumps of chrysanthemums to divide, too.

Monday—A lot of new books got me all riled up till I closed them with a good mad bang. You'd think to read the twaddle about women at work that nobody had ever thought of the idea before the Twentieth century. When as a matter of fact women of ancient Greece demanded and won the right to practice medicine along with men. The reason the fight for women's rights goes on and on forever is that women are more interested, one generation with another, in home and babies. So they don't bother to consolidate and pyramid their gains outside—and why should they?

Tuesday—When I dropped by the Garretts this morning I was so surprised at the change. It just took two new chairs to lift their living room completely out of the dumps. Two open arm chairs in a brilliant American beauty damask. The rug is an oriental in blues with rose . . . the walls are ivory . . . the sofa is blue, a loveseat and two chairs are in cream with a floral design . . . the draperies are American beauty. So far so good but somehow rather dull—till those two scientific chairs were added.

Wednesday—Saw a very attractive room for twin girls today with a double dressing table—long enough for two shield-shaped mirrors side by side on the wall and two stools—the skirt was of white dotted swiss with heading through which was run light blue ribbon.

Thursday—Here's a color point that a prominent decorator made in a conversation today. Said he, "You won't get tired of any color, however bright, provided it is used correctly; whereas you can be bored to death with the lack of color in a room."

Saturday—I guess I'm just an old man, but it does hurt my feelings to see the yard I nurse so tenderly used as a shortcut by nearly everybody who goes around our corner. I'm not one to rush out and protest because I think bramble hedges in strategic places would do more good than words.

is made by hollowing out centers of sour spiced pickles and stuffing with pimento, cottage or cream cheese. A bit of grated onion or onion juice may be added to the cheese.

Louisiana Strawberry Marlow. Three cups strawberries, 20 marshmallows, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup whipping cream, pinch of salt. Mash the strawberries and sprinkle with sugar. Let set until juice is drawn. Pour off 1 cup juice and heat with marshmallows until marshmallows are melted. Cool. Add remainder of juice, lemon juice, and salt, and fold in whipped cream. Pour into tray and freeze, until set. Then fold in mashed strawberries and finish freezing. Do not freeze too hard.

Use of Tobacco Before Age Of Twenty, Wrong, Says Doc

By Dr. William Brady.

Whenever a doctor fails to conform to the conventional pattern of conduct the laity deem suitable for him, some one is pretty certain to explain that he uses dope.

I escaped addiction to cocaine by a narrow margin when I began practice—I don't know what saved me from continuing to fool with it, in the dreary days and nights when I waited, waited, waited for my first patient and worried, worried, worried about my debts. I have had a few samples of morphine shots, too, but natural sleep is far pleasanter, it seems to me.

Half an hour ago I lit my pipe, took a puff, set it down, went on with my writing. Ordinarily I enjoy the first pipe of the day after dinner in the evening—and that way I enjoy it far more than I would if I smoked during the day. I lit the pipe intending to knock off work for the rest of the afternoon and go out and play. Now that I have resumed work, the pipe has gone out and I'll light it only after I have finished the day's work.

Perhaps I am biased. It does seem to me that people who smoke more or less all through the day, even when at work or going through the motions of work, deprive little pleasure from it. Especially does this seem true of people who smoke even when they sit down to table or before they have finished the meal.

I am fond of tobacco myself. I maintain a large flock of pipes and vacillate between half a dozen kinds of tobacco. As a youth I never did apply hot-tobacco smoke in my respiratory tract. A clergyman, my neighbor, taught me to smoke when I was 26 and moved to his neighborhood and for a while had nothing to do but wait, wait, wait for new patients and worry, worry, worry about my unpaid rent and grocery bills. Pretty base business for a clergyman, what? But I have only fond memories of that clergyman's friendliness, and I've met a dozen non-smoking clergymen since who could not weigh up with the vicar who introduced me to La Pipa. The clergyman had an ally. My sorrel horse. Of course I took care of Topsy myself. Sometimes this left a certain aroma about me, La Pipa disguised the aroma. That was a long while ago. Yet sometimes even now I dream I hurry out to feed and water Topsy and hitch her up to drive to Beltona or up to Bluff Point . . . I hope Topsy and Tony the Irish Terrier will both be waiting for me when I come out there.

If I had my way it would be a felony for any person under twenty-one years of age to buy, possess or use tobacco in any form, and for anyone to sell or give tobacco to such a person.

That's all the hygiene for today, old timers.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Sugar Cane and Pyorrhea. Instructor in boys' high school writes:

Last winter I chewed sugar cane in Louisiana and grew fat. Afterwards tried oranges without success. Last fall I tried grapes without success. What is there about the juice of sugar cane that activates the kidneys and energizes glandular tissues and organs? I believe chewing sugar cane has cured my pyorrhea, too.

Answer—The sugar cane of course contains all of the vitamins, calcium and other minerals that grow in it, or rather the juice does. These are removed in refining sugar. Then, too, the exercise and massage of teeth, gums, jaw structure, chewing sugar cane, is beneficial.

A Cheated Wife Does Not Use Logic

By Caroline Chatfield.

Is it possible for a man to love his wife and at the same time cheat her? asks a bitter young wife. So say the chiselling husbands who profess, confess and entreat their wives not to resort to redress. But its one of those things no woman will ever understand. Yes, she can work it out on paper according to the best rules of logic; that is as a general proposition. But when her heart is cut to the quick, logic is out.

Despite the fact that we women idealize, love to the point that nobody but the Apostles Paul would recognize, the commodity with which we are more or less acquainted is no better than we are. A man's love for his wife is merely an expression of his character, his personality, as better, no worse; and never perfect.

While his love brings out the best that's in him, it won't keep him from lapsing. Like water, his love seeks its level—and finds it, high or low as his character is. When his love for a girl is first awakened he makes a colossal effort to please her. If he's a liar he has the urge to be truthful. If he has the drink habit he tries his best to conquer it. If he has no self-control and falls for every temptation that teases him, love will hold him up temporarily—but not for life.

When the new has worn off the old weaknesses come up for air. The call of the bottle is heard in his ear, the habit of taking refuge in the lie reasserts itself. The swish of the petticoat catches his attention. There's the logic but can the cheated wife use it? She cannot.

Once upon a time I knew a woman who had a faithful servant of whom she was very fond—a light fingered maid who couldn't resist picking up small change and other odds and ends. Many times I have seen the mistress locking her desk, remarking that she mustn't put temptation in the maid's way. In case money or other few-jaws disappeared she never mentioned them. Because, the wise woman explained, she'd rather put up with petty pilferage than to the maid with a servant who was very valuable to her, lose her and in her place take one that had worse faults.

I think there's a small tip for the wife whose husband has a tendency to cheat: she should keep temptation out of his way as nearly as possible and if, in spite of all her care, he meets temptation and slips, she should not lose sight of the compensating factors, nor forget that other husbands would certainly have some faults, maybe worse ones.

Here's Another Bridge Quiz

By Harold Sharpsteen.

In a recent southern duplicate tournament, South bemoaned the fact that North had taken their contract on to five diamond over opponents' five club bid, which South had doubled, and which could have been defeated one trick.

The principle reason for South's loud wailing was that his five diamond contract, which was doubled by East, was defeated.

But, it need not have been. The deal:

N
S-72
H-J97
D-K9863
C-75

W
S-64
H-8553
D-A7
C-AK1084

E
S-K10983
H-KQ10
D-C
C-QJ932

S
H-A42
D-Q10542
C-6

West opened the club king and followed with the ace which South trumped. South then led a small diamond which West won with the ace. To throw South back into the lead again, West played his diamond seven as his return lead at the fourth trick.

MAKES CONTRACT POSSIBLE. Now, South can win the remaining tricks and fulfill his contract. Spread the four above hands on a table and see if you can play the deal at double dummy.

If you fail to make the contract, the solution will be given tomorrow.

North argued, South should have been able to place the remaining outstanding high cards, when West won the diamond trick with the ace.

NO TRUMP TRICK. East, doubled, lacking a trump trick.

But even with that much information at his disposal, South lost the contract.

Play the first four tricks as indicated above and take South's hand from that point on, of course winning the fourth trick in dummy hand.

Til tomorrow . . . . .

MY DAY Dignity, Simplicity Impress Visitors

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON—I was up early this morning and out on the bridge path for a short time, but by 11 o'clock the usual busy Washington day was upon me. I began with a press conference, next I saw a lady who makes some rather unique bags, and then there began my Christmas shopping. A hasty glance at the morning mail, and then the usher was at the door announcing that my guests from the World Congress of Writers had arrived.

This group has been holding meetings at the World's Fair in New York city under the auspices of the American Center of the International P. E. N. (poets, editors, essayists and novelists). Dorothy Thompson, who is president of the American Center; Mr. Jules Romains, the international president of P. E. N., and my old friend, Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach, whose husband is vice president, were the first people I saw on entering the room. I asked them all to come over at one to the President's office, where he was waiting to receive them. Then we came back to the White House for lunch at little tables in the state dining room and out on the south portico, while the Marine Band played for us on the lawn.

They were all interested in making a tour of the first and second-floor rooms, and I tried to tell them a little of the history as we went our rounds. Back in the entrance hall, they bade me goodbye, and one after the other told me how much they were impressed by the simplicity and dignity of the White House.

We who live here always have that feeling, but it is interesting to find that foreigners coming here for the first time, carry away that impression, and universally seem to feel that it is the perfect house to represent the democracy of the United States.

I was running through my mail last night and I came across a most amusing letter from a gentleman, Mr. Everett Whitmyre, who said that he was sending me a new invention in the way of children's books and, though I did not know it, I was partly responsible for his success. He had been trying to sell his idea and had become rather discouraged, when he happened to go up in the elevator with me in an office building in New York city. Because I smiled and looked cheerful, he took heart again, got the money to finance his undertaking and is today employing a number of people. These books are light to hold and, as you read, you turn a little button and the book rolls up a page at a time. So, if you put it down, there are no pages to blow and make it hard for you to find your place again.

Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Department of Agriculture, explained to my press conference this morning the experiment which is being tried out in the distribution of surplus commodities in six cities. They are beginning in Rochester, N. Y. and, if it proves successful, they hope gradually to increase this method of distribution with the object of increasing the consumption of surplus foods, of improving the diet of people who need it, and perhaps of bringing down the general costs on certain articles because of wider distribution.

William Holden Gets Most Sought-After Masculine Role

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.—With some old-timers and new-timers on the sets, "Golden Boy"—or, in other words, William Holden—alias William Franklin Beedle, Jr., or "Beetle" for short, I find the lad still groggy after his sudden jump from the Paramount stock market to the starring position in the most sought-after masculine role of the year.

"How did it happen?" he repeats my query. "I think it was like this. To get my $50-a-week job with Paramount, I had to take a test. To save money and time, I had to take the test with a girl who was also after a stock job at Paramount. Shortly afterward, I heard the wonderful news that I was to get a part in Paramount's 'Million Dollar Legs.' The part consisted of two words—'Thank you'—but I was pretty excited about it. And when I heard that about Columbia's search for a 'Golden Boy,' I didn't even join in the conversation. I had my part and I was sticking to it."

Not so the girl who took the Paramount test with Holden. She wanted the role of the sister in "Golden Boy" and sent her test to Columbia. And here I'll tell "Golden Boy's" director, Rouben Mamoulian, take up the story. "We had given up hope of finding an unknown boy for the part and practically decided on Lew Ayres or Richard Carlson. I was looking at some tests for the sister and saw Holden hovering somewhere in the background. Our search for a 'Golden Boy' was over."

The girl, incidentally, did not get the sister role! Holden, born in Illinois, is 21 years old, blue-eyed, brown-haired and with no romantic attachment—as yet. His sole previous acting experience was impersonating Pierre Curie, Sr., a 70-year-old man, with the Pasadena Junior College Dramatic Society. For his role of prize-fighter violinist, Holden has had to shave his chest (shades of Robert Taylor), dye his locks dark, curl them (this had to be done a few days before morning because William washes them out every evening before going home). He spends one hour a day learning Italian, one hour learning to box, and one hour learning to play the violin. The rest of the time he is acting or pinching himself to make sure it isn't a dream. And, by the way, he still earns $50 a week—which makes him the all-time lowest salaried star. But he doesn't care. He says he would do it for nothing. So would I.

And now for some old-timers on "The Women" set. Most harassed male working on the picture is not Director George Cukor, but hairdresser Sidney Guiliardoff. When he is fixing Norma Shearer's locks, Joan Crawford shouts for him, and the business is reversed when vice versa. Meanwhile, the rest of "The Women" must wait. And Guiliardoff fumes, "I cannot be taken away from my masterpieces."

On this particular morning, there are fourteen "takes" for a one-minute scene with Rosalind Russell, Joan Fontaine, Florence Nash and Phyllis Fovah, who is repeating her non-stop mother role from the New York stage. The ladies are toying with hors d'oeuvres during the fourteen "takes." Says Cukor to Miss Fontaine, "Now, don't play the scene like your sister Olivia (de Havilland), sweet and lovely-like." And to the other femmes—"Now, ladies, let's have some zip in this scene—sparkle, life. This is comedy. Full of beans." Says Rosalind Russell—"I can't. I'm full of little sausages. Perhaps I'd better go back to the B's." (Ouch!)

On the set of "Winter Carnival," there is a hiatus in production.

by Jack Troy

There is a coin trick going around our town which is as baffling as the sight of seeing a rabbit pulled out of a hat.

You hand the manipulator a marked coin. It is carefully marked so you will recognize it. He then rams a hand in his pocket or coat and produces a red box which is stoutly wrapped with rubber bands. The bands are removed and there is an ordinary match box inside. It also has heavy rubber bands running lengthwise and crosswise.

The match box is opened and inside is a small felt bag which is fastened at the open end with a rubber band. You remove the band and discover the marked dime.

The first impression is that it can't be done. And the impression remains unless the manipulator is kind enough to reveal how simple it really is.

Fully as baffling as the coin trick is how American league batsmen are able to hit Robert Feller, the Cleveland Smoke-stack, if what they're saying about him is true.

They're saying he is faster than Walter Johnson. Bill Klem, the ancient umpire, who has watched the greatest, says he is faster than Johnson or Vance.

If Klem's eyes aren't deceiving him, then young Bob Feller virtually is delivering a baseball to the plate in NOTHING FLAT.

And here's why. When Walter Johnson was in his prime he threw a baseball at the rate of 134 feet per second. It is only 60 feet from pitcher's mound to home plate. Hence, Johnson propelled the ball up there in considerably less than half a second.

Napoleon Rucker, the former mayor of Roswell, recalls the time he and Johnson and Smoky Joe Wood went up to New Haven, Conn., to have their speed gauged by an electrical device for measuring gunfire.

Rucker's high hard one traveled at the rate of 119 feet a second, which meant his fast one traveled from mound to mitt in virtually half a second. Wood's speed was measured at 125 feet a second and Johnson's at 134.

So if Feller really is so much faster than Johnson that it is noticeable, he ought to have the greatest year any pitcher ever had in baseball.

For the old saying, "You can't hit 'em if you can't see 'em," becomes more than a saying in his case. It's an actuality. During the period he lets the ball go until the catcher has it there is no elapsed time, or at least not enough to notice.

TECH GOLFERS UPSET GEORGIA AT DRUID HILLS

Play of Frank Legg and Bob Thompson Gives Jackets 11-7 Win.

Georgia Tech evened the spring golf count against the University of Georgia yesterday when its No. 3 and No. 4 men came through with the points needed to give Tech an 11-7 victory.

Seeking to repeat a triumph scored earlier in the season at Athens, the Bulldogs' top pair of Sonny Swift and Jim Dudley split with Tech's No. 1 and No. 2 men, Dan Yates and Jack Cook, each side getting 4-1-2 points.

But Frank Legg and Bob Thompson saved the day for the engineers by winning 6-1-2 of a possible nine points in their test against Byron Bower and Elliott Waddell of Georgia.

Yates was the low individual scorer with a 71, one under par for the Druid Hills course. Cook and Dudley each carded a 72, the latter being low man for the Georgians. In sewing up Tech's victory, Legg turned in a neat 75 and Thompson came through with a 76.

AUBURN BEATEN BY OGLETHORPE

AUBURN, Ala., May 12.—Provided with a six-run advantage in the first three innings, George Hooks had an easy time hurling the Oglethorpe Petrels to a 11-3 triumph over the Auburn Tigers here Friday in the opening of a two-game return series. The two clubs will clash on the local diamond Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Tigers' final home engagement of the year.

Issuing only one base on balls and fanning seven, Hooks gave up only seven hits and allowed the losers to bunch their knocks in only two frames. The first two hitters for Auburn in the second, Ralph Frazier and Howard Baze-more, rapped out singles, but both died on base and Hooks was in trouble in only one more inning during the afternoon.

Besides hurling masterfully, the effective Hooks also led his team offensively by driving in four runs with two triples. Henry Geraci, Enny Downs, John Barnett and Jim Decker also did some heavy hitting for the visitors, whose 14 safeties were distributed to nine players.

ATLANTANS WIN IN MACON SHOW

MACON, Ga., May 12.—(AP)—For the second successive year, the arch-neck of Atlanta-owned Debonair Duke tonight displayed the Macon Horse Show Association's grand championship wreath of roses.

Ridden by Harold Ogburn, of Atlanta, the high spirited bay from the Charles Nunnally stables carried away the five-gaited championship event which closed Macon's third annual horse show in Central City park.

Other championship winners in the evening show were Sir Charles Allen, owned by E. E. Chapman, of Greenville, S. C., and shown by Wade Stepp, of Macon, and Mountain Molly, owned by J. V. Robinson, Greenville, and ridden by E. G. Gilmore, of Edison, Ga.

Heading the list of riders who placed first in the afternoon and night performances were Eleanor Clay and Sam McConnell, of Atlanta, each with three blue ribbons; Billy Black, Atlanta, two firsts; and Rebecca Hardaway, Columbus, two.

L. BARNES WINS AT MONTEZUMA

MONTEZUMA, Ga., May 12.—(AP)—Luke Barnes, of Atlanta, today scored a four-under-par 101 in the 27-hole Montezuma open golf tournament at the McKenzie Memorial course to win the Central of Georgia championship.

Arnold Mears, of Savannah, and Howard Lilliston, of Americus, had cards of 111 each to tie for top place among the pros.

Other scores included: Hoke Cooley, Atlanta pro, 112; Leo Bateman, Savannah pro, 125; Carry Rich, Griffin pro, 128; A. H. Coolidge Jr., Atlanta amateur, 119; A. C. Felton, Atlanta amateur, 125; C. M. Howard, LaGrange amateur, 141.

Seventeen pros and 21 amateurs participated.

'WHOA, BROTHER, YOU CAN'T GET BACK TO THIS BASE SAFELY'

Georgia's "Spook" Newsom (No. 17) is in a bad way in this bit of fast action yesterday at Rose Bowl field. The Bulldog shortstop overran third base on Bob Smith's hit to center and was thrown out. Collins Flynt, Jacket third baseman, has already taken the throw from Billy Gibson and is about to put the ball on Newsom. Note the expression on Flynt's face. Tech won the game, 9 to 3. The teams play in Athens this afternoon.

PERRIN WALKER SETS MEET MARK

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 12.—(AP) The spectacular Chuck Fenske, of the University of Wisconsin, running unattached, outdistanced Archie San Romani, famed Kansan, by a scant yard tonight to win the featured E. H. Crump mile of the Cotton Carnival track meet.

Putting on a burst of speed in the stretch, Fenske pushed ahead of San Romani from third spot after passing Kansas' Glenn Cunningham, who finished a poor third.

The time was 4:11.50, tenth of a second slower than the meet record set last year.

A new meet record of 9.8 seconds was set in the 100-yard dash by Perrin Walker, running for Oglethorpe University. The Georgian broke the tape four yards ahead of Dick Bowman, former Ole Miss star. Walker also won the 220 in 21.9 seconds.

AGGIES DEFEAT RIVERSIDE, 10-7

WALKER PARK, Ga., May 12.—With two former Governors, Clifford Walker and Eugene Talmadge, and Governor Ed Rivers as a part of their audience the Monroe Aggies defeated their traditional rivals, Riverside, here today, 10-7.

Governor Rivers "went the route" after arriving a few minutes after the game started but the two did not meet at the park. The day was a festive one here with the Georgia Military Academy band of College Park, furnishing music for the highway celebration and as guests of President David I. "Red" Barron at the ball game.

Tech Beats Georgia; Billy Gibson Stars

Drives in 6 Runs With 2 Homers and Single, as Engineers Win, 9-3.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY. Captain Billy Gibson batted in six runs with two homers and a single yesterday to lead Tech to a 9-10-3 victory over Georgia in the first game of the season between the two teams at Rose Bowl field. The Jacket shortstop swatted two terrific drives to right center field off young Bob Smith to personally hand the Bulldog star his second college defeat. Gibson also fielded his position sensationally, despite a dubious error in the first inning on a play he was lucky to get his hands on.

Red Oliver, young sophomore curve-ball pitcher, kept up his good work by limiting the Bulldogs to seven hits—all singles. He is the only Yellow Jacket to beat a college opponent this season.

The Jackets got nine hits off Smith, the last being a long home run by Earl Wheby, fleet right fielder. Five Georgia errors, three in the disastrous fifth when the Jackets got four runs off one hit, hurt him no little. Tech made four miscues but Oliver was equal to each occasion.

PLAY IN ATHENS. The two teams resume the series today in Athens. J. V. Sikes is expected to send Lefty Jack Clifton to the mound in an effort to even the count while Bobby Dodd will counter with either Hawk Cavette or Jack Chivington.

Georgia scored one in the first inning when Gerson was safe when Gibson fielded his ground-er brilliantly but pulled Burpo off the bag with his throw. Stallings struck out but Gerson stole second with a single to right.

Tech got two in their half of the first. Eddie Voorhies singled to center on the first ball pitched. Flynt sacrificed him to second. Shaw bounded out, Kelly to Shipworth, but Gibson hit his first homer, scoring Voorhies ahead of him.

Georgia tied it up in the third when Gerson walked. Stallings sacrificed him to second and he went to third when Gibson threw out Kelly. He scored when Burpo dropped Gibson's throw on Shipworth's bouncer.

Smith settled down and apparently had the situation in hand, setting the Jackets down without a hit for the next three innings while Georgia went a run ahead in the fourth. Thomas walked. Mims sacrificed and Thomas stole third and scored when Newsom beat out a hit to third.

JACKET UPRISING. However, things broke loose in the Jackets' half of the fifth. Oliver lived on Newsom's error. Voor-

Cold Weather Stops Crackers, Travelers

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 12.—(AP)—Cold weather today caused postponement of the first of a three-game series between the Little Rock Travelers and the Atlanta Crackers.

Low temperatures have prevailed here in recent nights to the discomfort of fans and players alike.

The teams play a double-header Sunday, and tomorrow is an off day. Tonight's game will be made up at a later date.

Manager George Toporcer returned from Louisville, where he conferred with Boston Red Sox and Louisville baseball club officials on prospects of obtaining player aid for his cellar-dwelling Travelers. Little Rock has a working agreement with the Sox.

MRS. PAGE BOWS IN SEMI-FINALS AT PONTE VEDRA

Jane Cothran Falls Before Fine Stroking of Texas Golfer.

by ROY WHITE. PONTE VEDRA COUNTRY CLUB, PONTE VEDRA, Fla., May 12.—Marion Miley, the 1938 champion and Curtis cup player, and Mrs. Dan Chandler, of Dallas, Texas, will battle 36 holes tomorrow for the 28th annual southern women's golf championship. The morning round will start at 10 o'clock with the final 18 holes slated to begin at 2 o'clock.

Playing the greatest golf she has played since she won the championship from Mrs. Page on the 37th green at Birmingham, Ala., last year, Miley, the Kentucky stylist, defeated Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page Jr., from Greensboro, N. C., 3-2 to enter Saturday's finals.

Mrs. Chandler, twice medalist in the southern, but never past the semi-final round before, eliminated Miss Jane Cothran, from Greenville, S. C., 3-1, in the other half of today's semi-final round.

Tied with Dot Kirby and Mrs. E. L. Donaldson, of New Orleans, at 83 in fourth place, four strokes behind Mrs. Page, the medalist, in the qualifying round, Miley has bettered her game each day until it was well near perfect in today's victory. It was her second straight and two out of three in tournament play over Mrs. Page.

Mrs. Page started strong with a birdie on No. 1 as Miley's drive caught a trap. That was Mrs. Page's first and only advantage of the match, as Miley squared accounts at three and went one up at four, never to be headed again.

Miley's putter, which hasn't been exactly "hot" this week, came to her rescue today and coupled with another round of deadly approaching it would have taken a sub par round to beat her.

A slice on her drive during the early rounds has about gone and she has regained much lost confidence in the last two rounds, in beating Dorothy Kirby, the 1937 winner, and Mrs. Page, a former national champion.

LEAD 2 UP AT NINTH. Marion finished the first nine two up and had a medal of 41, one over par, despite a disastrous five at nine, where her drive went into the water. Mrs. Page had a two over par medal round.

On the first nine Miley jumped a styne into the cup for a par four at five and a win and two chips shots to within four inches of the cup. She had three one-

Johnstown Rated Cinch To Win 7-Horse Preakness Today

DERBY WINNER AND HIS MATE PAY ONLY 1 TO 5

Clencia, Challedon, Gilded Knight, Volitant, Impound, Challenge Run.

By SID FEDER.
BALTIMORE, May 12.—(AP)—Six three-year-olds were named today to try to give Johnstown a run for it in tomorrow's Preakness, but everyone around Pimlico's race course felt it was just a matter of how large the "big guy's" winning margin would be and how small the cash return to the bettor.

None of the other half-dozen entered in the rich mile-and-three-sixteenths gallop figured to have any more of a look in than did the seven who trailed the William Woodward stepper home in the Kentucky Derby a week ago. Yet, five of the six entered with him, in the smallest Preakness field in 24 years, are likely to go to the post, and since it costs $500 to start your horse, the owners must figure their hopefuls have some kind of chance.

Not so the wise ones around the track, however. They figured Johnstown's big boy, to be coupled with either one or two mates as Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons' entry, was odds on at no better than 1 to 5, shortest price in the 66-year history of this race. And at that, most folks reckoned a bet on Johnstown, even at those prices, was like money in the bank.

MATE IS THREAT.
Only his definite entry mate, Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Gilded Knight, the surprise package of this spring's campaigning with a victory in the Chesapeake, was given any kind of an outside opportunity. The little King Ranch filly, Clencia, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, was regarded at no better than 16-1.

Challedon and Volitant, who chased the Woodward whirlwind across the finish in the Derby and the Wood, respectively, were conceded some slim chance of improving on their last efforts against the big fellow, but since he beat each of them by six lengths in a shoo-in, there was plenty of room for improvement before they could look him in the eye on the way home.

'SUNNY JIM' IS SITTING PRETTY FOR PREAKNESS

It looks like Fitzsimmons all the way in the Preakness at Pimlico track today, with Gilded Knight (left), Wheatley colt, and Johnstown (right), Woodward Stable's 1939 Kentucky Derby winner, the favorites. "Sunny Jim" is shown with his two charges, which will be coupled in the betting despite the fact that they belong to rival stables.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Impound is somewhat of a mystery, since the genial young sportsman has kept his contender here to work over Pimlico's cushiony footing for the past few weeks, but even whatever advantage the "local boy" might derive from that training didn't make him any better than a 12-1 or 15-1 shot to turn the trick.

Only in the event of mud do the railbirds figure Johnstown might run into trouble. And since "Mr. Big" hasn't yet been asked to go in the slop, no one is quite sure that he wouldn't take to that and love it just the same. If it should come up mud—and the weather forecast is for clear and cool—there will be seven starters going to the post, with Johnstown's giant stablemate, Challenge, hooking up with the Jamestown offspring and Gilded Knight as "Mr. Fitz's" entry.

In the matter of odds, even War Admiral paid $2.70 for $2 a couple of years back, and Watervale was 6-5 in 1911. But so completely has the even-tempered handsome bay dominated the 3-year-old field this season, winning four times by a total of 25 lengths, that nothing seems able to lead him.

Every colt in the field had a light work this morning, more in the nature of loosening-up efforts than anything else. Johnstown galloped a little, then went a quarter in 23 2-5. Volitant and Impound had a run for a half, the former being clocked in 48 flat and Vanderbilt's colt in 53.

There was little laughter among the trainers as they filed their entries in the racing secretary's office. Differing from the scene at the Derby last week, where some of the fellows figured they had a chance, all knew what they were up against this time. And it was nothing to be tickled about.

N. G. I. C. STAGES TRACK CARNIVAL THIS AFTERNOON

North Fulton Scene of Meet; Marist Defends Its Championship.

Flying athletes will make the cinders fly this afternoon out on the fine North Fulton High school track where the annual N. G. I. C. cinder carnival will hold sway throughout the evening, with 1 o'clock set as the time for the first breaking of the tape.

It was last season that Louie Van Houten, Marist coach, trucked out to the track with a team totaling three tracksters, who proceeded to dumbfound the onlookers by galloping home with a total of 20 points and first place in the meet.

Ed Ryckley, Alvin McDonald and Wright were the three. The former two are back to scamper again today. With Harry Capallo they will be the defending champions, but it is thought to be a tougher job than three boys can handle for a repeat performance. Of the 10 teams expected to compete the host Bulldogs seem to have the best chance of toppling the champs' crown. Coach R. S. Lowrance at North Fulton has a well-balanced squad with Dick Gray, Eddie Frase, Connell and Rayburn carrying the brunt of the burden.

Stiff argument is expected from LaGrange, last year's runner-up, Spalding, of Griffin and Athens High, whose swimming team recently won every point in the N. G. I. C. tank meet at Athens, and broke two conference records in accomplishing the unique feat. Nunnally is the Red team's finest cinder scatterer. Jack Davis, Russell High's top-notch in every phase of competitive sport, is expected to make the day miserable for some of the lads in whatever events he happens to enter.

Yates Cards 7 Under Par

Charlie 'Obliges' Photographers and Cards Brilliant 29.

LONDON, May 12.—(AP)—Charlie Yates, just back from a flying visit to Berlin, Rome and Paris, raced around the first nine holes of the old championship course at Sunningdale in 29 strokes today.

Smiling Charlie, who will defend his British amateur golf championship at Hoylake starting May 22, was seven under par for the nine. Actually he went out just to oblige an Associated Press photographer but then decided to play a few holes before dark with Bill Holt, of Syracuse, and Max Aitken, former British Walker Cup player.

HAMBY TO SHOOT TODAY FOR SPOT ON U. S. COMBINE

Menzen, Jackson Also Compete in Rifle Trials at Waycross.

Atlanta's outstanding small-bore rifle marksmen, Charles Hamby, Erwin P. Menzen and Carl L. Jackson, left yesterday for Waycross, to compete today for the highest honors to be conferred by the National Rifle Association on any small-bore shooter—membership on the squad that sails for England June 21 to make another thrust at the British holders of the Pershing trophy, the Davis cup of the rifle world.

A group of five of the nation's top-ranking shooters have been invited to the Waycross tryouts, representing the states of Florida and Georgia. These shooters are the select few whose records for the 1938 season of registered competition place them within the top 50 of the national rankings or whose averages for the year were 384 or better of a possible 400 points over the standard Dewar course. This course, which all of the team aspirants will fire four times during the tryouts, Saturday and Sunday, consists of 20 shots at 50 yards and 20 at 100 yards, using rifles fitted with metallic sights only.

The winner of the Waycross eliminations will join the winners of seven other regional tryouts to be held on the same days and with four others to be selected at large from the entire field of eligibles, will make up the 12-man official United States team.

JOE DAVIS BEATS TECH NET STAR

SEWANE, Tenn., May 12.—(AP) Joe Davis, of Vanderbilt University, today eliminated Defending Champion Russell Bobbitt, Georgia Tech, from the Southeastern conference tennis tournament. Davis, a sophomore, will meet unseeded Jack Bushman, of Louisiana State University, tomorrow afternoon in the championship match.

Bushman, the tournament's giant-killer, gained his finals berth with a victory over Alex Guerry Jr., of Sewanee, who was seeded No. 2. The score was 6-8, 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3.

Davis took the first two sets in his match with Bobbitt and then dropped two before capturing the match. The score, 8-6, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

MIAMI, Fla., May 12.—(AP)—The speedboat Emancipator VIII, holder of the world 225-cubic inch hydroplane record, overturned and was badly damaged during a test run today, but its noted owner and driver, S. Mortimer Auerbach, escaped with minor injuries.

WHAT DOES Vigilance MEAN IN A BEER?

THERE is an old saying to the effect that "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." In a beer it is the price of quality.

Vigilance in a beer means unceasing watchfulness to make sure that every bushel of grain, every pound of hops, every gallon of water measures up to the established high standards. It means endless caution to maintain the purity of the brewer's yeast. It means testing and checking at every stage of the brewing.

Such vigilance is costly, of course. But at Atlantic no cost is too great that helps make a finer—more uniform—more delicious and satisfying brew.

Try a bottle of Good Old Atlantic Beer today. You'll like its dry balanced flavor—the full-bodied richness of fine barley malt, the zesty tang of premium hops. You'll appreciate the mellow goodness that comes from long, patient aging. Atlantic Beer is brewed the slow, expensive way—yet it costs only ten cents.

We challenge anyone to brew a better beer at any price.

In cool, quiet cellars far underground, Good Old Atlantic Beer is left to slowly ripen in these great casks. And while it ages it is watched—until finally the day comes when it reaches the peak of its smooth, mellow perfection. Then—and only then—is it bottled for your enjoyment.
